

STATE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY EXPECTED TO BREAK ALL BALLOT RECORDS TODAY

British Bomb Reichstag and Heart of Berlin

Nazis Pound London Again; Death Toll, Damages Mounting

Air Force Will Strike With 'Thousand Fold' Reprisals—Germany.

By The Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 11.—(Wednesday)—British raiders blasted central Berlin today with incendiary bombs and explosives, hitting the German Reichstag (parliament building, and shaking government buildings along Unter Den Linden, in the hardest attack of the war on the capital of the Reich.

One incendiary bomb fell through the roof of the Reichstag building. The building was set afire, but the flames were said to have been extinguished quickly by watchmen.

A 500-pound bomb thundered into historic Unter Den Linden within 300 yards of the United States embassy building, which was undamaged. Heavy bombs smashed into the government building section, shattering windows and rocking administration buildings of the Reich.

Other explosives ripped up parts of the Avenue of Splendor, handsome street through the Tiergarten and known as an important east west axis which was Adolf Hitler's pride. Holes 12 feet deep were torn in the pavement.

Still another explosive bomb fell near the ministry of the interior, blowing ground floor windows out of the building occupied by the Berlin bureau of the International News Service, an American news agency.

An official German announcement declared that the raiders, aided by a clear, moonlit night, were trying to score hits on the government buildings of the Wilhelmstrasse—hitting back desperately after having their own capital bombed four successive nights.

Most earlier British raids have been beaten back at the outskirts of Berlin. But this time the raiders roared directly over the heart of the city.

(The raid on Berlin came a few hours after German spokesmen said the Nazi air fleet would blast the British capital "a thousand-fold" in reprisal for attacks on German cities, according to the United Press.)

Military experts said on a moonlight night and in the light of dozens of flares dropped by the bombers, there was no possibility

Capital's Water Supply Cut; Hundreds Killed in School Building.

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—(Wednesday)—Nazi bombers smashed at scarred and war-torn London with increasing violence early today in their fourth consecutive dusk-to-dawn rodeo of destruction.

Until early this morning, the attack was much less ferocious than the previous three.

Then the pace stepped up until four separate squadrons were wheeling about the capital at the same time at opposite points of the compass.

Heavier bursts of British anti-aircraft fire followed their repeated course up the Thames Estuary and over and around the city.

Heavy explosions shook the central area afresh.

A stick of six bombs fell in one area of the city; in another two heavy bombs jarred the earth. Hours later, salvos were falling at intervals, but they appeared to be dropping in the outskirts.

Just after midnight, the tempo of anti-aircraft fire was stepped up against these outlying invaders.

Apartment House Hit.
An apartment house on one of London's squares was shattered by a high explosive bomb just before all-clear signals clamored the end of an eight-hour and 29-minute raid, longest of the war. The clear signal came at 4:40 a. m.

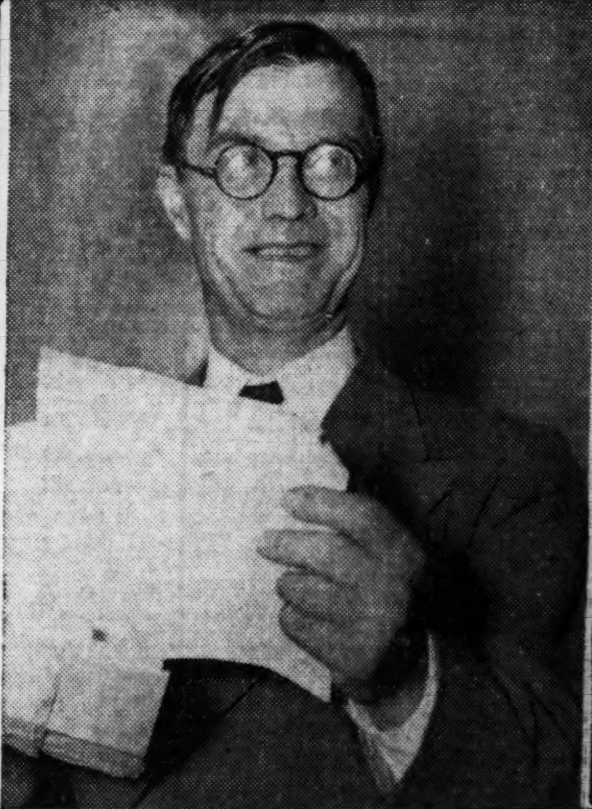

German planes also were over northwest England and Wales, and eight bombs were reported dropped squarely in the center of one town in the southeast.

As the new raid on London went on, the list of dead in Monday night's attacks was tragically lengthened.

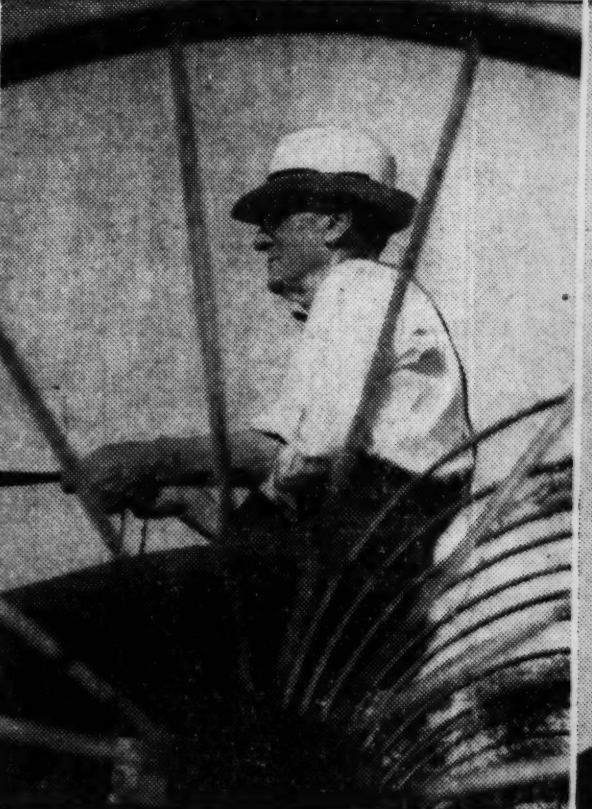

In four daylight appearances yesterday the Germans had dropped no explosives—confining themselves to reconnaissance for what was to come later and survey of the previous damage they wrought.

It came—the fifth raid since yesterday morning—just at 8:11 p. m. (2:11 p. m. Atlanta time) last night, the late English dinner hour.

While the British air force went on with the defense as best it could the streets filled suddenly again with running men and

540,000 Voters Are Registered In 159 Counties

24 Candidates Seeking 8 State Offices; 'No Rain' Forecast.

By LUKE GREENE.
Georgia will speak at the polls today.

As twilight fell last night on the 1940 campaigns and candidates settled back to await the verdict, it was held possible that Georgia might establish a new voting record for a Democratic primary.

There are 540,000 men and women registered to vote in Georgia's 159 counties, or approximately 150,000 more than in any previous year. With a weather prediction of "generally cooler and cloudy" but no rain, it was expected voters might start an early mass movement to the polls.

Three candidates for governor, each confident of victory, brought their campaigns to a whirlwind close.

24 Seek State Offices.
Twenty-four candidates for eight statehouse offices flooded the state with last-minute appeals.

To be elected governor at the primary election today a candidate must receive 206 county unit votes or a majority of the total of 410 county unit votes. If neither of the gubernatorial candidates should poll this number of votes, a run-over would be necessary between the two leading candidates.

In the event of a run-over, the party rules provide that it would be held October 11. Zach Arnold, vice chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, said.

Hundreds of Candidates.
In addition to voting for governor and statehouse officers, Georgians will ballot on 10 congressmen, with seven incumbents opposed; 52 state senators and 205 representatives, as well as superior court judges and solicitors general.

Opposing B. Frank Whelchel, of Gainesville, in the ninth district, are G. Fred Kelley, also of Gainesville; Herman de la Perriere, of Hoschton, and Dr. J. S. Golden, of Jasper.

Hugh Peterson, of the first district, is opposed by Albert Cobb, Savannah, attorney.

Seeking the regular term in the eighth district are Emory Bass, of Valdosta; J. J. Brown, of Bacon county; Braswell Deen, of Alma; John S. Gibson, of Douglas, and George W. Quinn, of Jesup.

Representatives of the first and ninth districts are elected on a

Savoy Serves Swanky Dinner To Guests in Air-Raid Shelter

London Night Life Moves to Fantastic Setting Where Good Food Is Provided While Searchlights Play and Bombs Fall Outside Hotel.

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—We dined at the Savoy last night, but not in the vast and costly restaurant with the great windows overlooking the Thames. Instead we ate in the cellar air-raid shelter.

The roast grouse was excellent; the setting, fantastic.

We were politely ushered down a long flight of stairs and into a room full of sandbags and steel pipes, interlaced like scaffolding to strengthen the room supports.

Spread about under the green pipes were dinner tables, covered with snowy damask and complete silver service.

A white-tied matinee d'hotel, surrounded by impeccably clad minions as usual, led us to a table and warned us—without cracking a smile—kindly to duck under the pipes so we could sit down.

None of the trimmings was left out. There was a postage stamp-sized dance floor, gleaming with polish.

The orchestra, wearing white mess jackets, played the current favorite, "The Nightingale Sang in Berkeley Square."

Vic Oliver, the famed humorist and son-in-law of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, came in about midnight and pulled his jokes. The usual gales of laughter greeted him.

A typically cool English woman sat at the next table, resplendent in dinner gown. She lost her composure once, sitting kerplunk on the floor when a couple of bombs went off outside.

Between dances we strolled along the hotel terrace, overlooking the waters of the Thames below. The spectacle of searchlights and exploding anti-aircraft shells went on in the night sky.

Leaving at 2 a. m., we walked through what heretofore has been the dining room. It was lined with davenport on which men and women slept in silk pajamas and dressing robes.

One man snored raucously.

Rome Company Faces Charge Of Mail Fraud

Two Officers of Stivers Firm Also Named in Indictment.

Theo Stivers Milling Company, of Rome, its president, Theodore Stivers, and its secretary, Katharine Lamon, were made defendants in an 11-count indictment returned by the federal grand jury yesterday, charging use of the mails to defraud.

The defendants were accused by the government of making false bookkeeping entries, preparing false statements, representing their assets as greater than they were and otherwise concealing the true condition of the company in order to obtain "unsecured credit in the amount of $100,000."

Firms defrauded, according to the indictment, were the First National Bank of Atlanta, the National City Bank of Rome, the Commercial Credit Corporation of Baltimore, and the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, of Greensboro, N. C.

United States district court records show the company, a flour milling concern, recently went through the courts and was reorganized under the bankruptcy act.

Checking of some of the accounts on the company's books led to an investigation and yesterday's indictment.

The government also charged the milling company with making false entries on its books to the effect that large cash sums were on hand in a Rome bank.

Primary Returns To Be Broadcast

The most complete service available in the state on today's Democratic primary, in which a Governor and state house officers as well as county officials and judges will be nominated, will be carried tonight from The Constitution's news rooms over radio station WGST.

Returns from all the 159 Georgia counties will go on the air from the news rooms of this newspaper as they come in. Fulton and DeKalb returns will be carried in detail.

The schedule for the election broadcasts will be:
6:10 to 6:15 p. m.
8:30 to 9 p. m.
10:35 to 11 p. m.

Bulletins will be flashed between these regular periods as important election news develops.

Speaker William B. Bankhead Faints From Illness in Baltimore

Alabama Congressional Leader Failed To Follow Physician's Suggestion To Cancel Speaking Date a Political Rally.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—(P)—Sixty-six-year-old William B. Bankhead, speaker of the house of representatives, fainted in his hotel room here tonight from an "excruciatingly painful" attack of sciatica, suffered a short time before he was to make an address opening the Democratic campaign in Maryland.

Dr. George W. Calver, navy physician and attending physician at the capitol in Washington, found Bankhead on the floor unconscious 35 minutes before his address, over a national radio hookup, was scheduled.

"His condition at present is quite satisfactory," Dr. Calver said, "but I am keeping him in bed here at the hotel at least all day tomorrow and possibly for several days. Mrs. Bankhead is here and a nurse can be obtained if necessary."

Dr. Calver said the speaker had been suffering painfully from sciatica for the last five days and that he had suggested that Bankhead cancel tonight's engagement.

"But, he said he had promised the boys that he would come over, and would not let them down," the Navy physician explained, adding that he had come along as a precautionary move.

The political rally went ahead as scheduled, with Governor Herbert R. O'Connor reading the speaker's prepared address. In the speech, Bankhead defended President Roosevelt's right to run for a third term and praised the administration's "good neighbor" foreign policy and defense program.

Dr. Stauffer has been pastor of the church here for nearly 15 years, having come here from the Woodward church, Cincinnati. Before that he was pastor of a large church in Washington, D. C.

F.D.R. To Speak on 'Paid Time' In First Campaign Broadside

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight suddenly terminated the debate over his "free use" of radio by announcing that he will deliver the New Deal's first full broadside of the third term campaign in an address over two major networks tomorrow night on "paid time."

The President, hitherto indirect in his battle with Wendell L. Willkie, addresses the AFL's powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers tomorrow night from 9:30 to 10 o'clock (Atlanta time).

The speech probably will be broadcast over one National Broadcasting Company network and the Columbia Broadcasting System—on time paid for by the Democratic national committee.

Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, Stephen T. Early, said the speech in "all probability" will be "the labor speech of the campaign."

The announcement, from temporary White House headquarters, outlined two major decisions in Mr. Roosevelt's campaign for a third term:

1. The indirect campaign against Willkie will terminate tomorrow when Mr. Roosevelt presents the nation with the record of eight years of New Deal relations with labor.

2. Presidential use of "free time" on major networks will become less of an issue, on basis of Early's declaration that Mr. Roosevelt never intended to ask the broadcasting companies to offer time gratis for political addresses.

Convicts Use 'Strip' Technique To Escape Forsyth Road Gang

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
CUMMING, Ga., Sept. 10.—Officers patrolled a maze of north Georgia highways and bypaths tonight, seeking trace of three white convicts who employed a "strip" technique to make their escape from a Forsyth county road gang late this afternoon and carried with them as hostage a man whose automobile they commandeered.

Sheriff L. A. Wheeler said the three men, whom he listed as Frank Bohannon, Bobby Ray and Luther Jack (Buster) Masters, overpowered and disarmed Guard Doris Garrett and a farmer, J. R. Holbrook. They seized a revolver and a shotgun, he said.

Sheriff Wheeler said the trio stripped Garrett and Holbrook of their clothing and tied them to a tree, then ordered several convicts to hand over their clothing, tossed it all into a pick-up truck, and fled.

A short distance from the scene, the sheriff said, the truck was wrecked and abandoned. Then, he said, the fugitives held up an automobile in which L. F. Ledbetter, Forsyth county Rural Electrification superintendent, and a Mrs. Padgett were riding. Mrs. Padgett was pulled from the car, he said, and Ledbetter was forced to accompany them.

Sheriff Wheeler said the escape was made about three miles west of here, and that the men drove through Cumming and later were seen on the Cumming-Buford road.

FBI records showed varied criminal records against Ray and Masters, involving charges of auto theft, burglary and robbery. Ray, who once served in Alcatraz on a combination of charges, has two recorded escapes.

Atlanta Schools Enroll 47,183 On First Day

Registration Will Pass Last Year's Mark, Coleman Predicts.

First day's enrollment in the Atlanta public school system was announced yesterday as 47,183 students, and Assistant Superintendent of Schools M. E. Coleman, in charge of attendance, predicted that the 45,893 enrolled at the close of the second day last year will be passed. Schools opened officially Monday, but registrations continued heavy yesterday.

Elementary schools had 28,024 students; junior high schools, 10,983, and senior high schools, 7,643 for Monday, which was the first school day.

Enrolled in the white schools are 31,658 students, including 18,051 in elementary grades; 7,626 in junior high schools, and 5,981 in senior high schools. In the Negro schools are 14,992 pupils, including 9,973 in elementary, 3,357 in junior high, and 1,662 in senior high grades. Opportunity school had 514 and Boys' special 19 students.

Enrollment for the first day in county white schools was in excess of 18,210 pupils, the county school department reported yesterday.

Heavy increases were noted in many schools, some of them being taxed beyond their present capacity, it was said.

Following are opening-day registration figures on all but two white schools:

High schools: Campbell, 334; Hapeville, 360; Eastern, 22; Fulton, 673; Milton, 322; North Fulton, 1,130; Richardson, 389; Riley, 61; Roswell, 69; Russell, 1,012; and West Fulton, 742.

Elementary: Ben Hill, 236; Benteen, 203; Bolton, 220; Campbell, 395; Carey Park, 67; Cascade, 250; Cedar Grove, 63; Center Hill, 438; Central, 89; Central Park, 521; Chattahoochee, 453; Church Street, 243; College Park, 385; Colonial Hills, 183; Lena H. Cox, 69; Eastern, 298; Hammond, 242; Harris Street, 356; Hemphill, 222; R. L. Hope, 572; Hopewell, 86; E. P. Howell, 471; Humphries, 161; Lakewood Heights, 510; Liberty-Gunn, 173; Longino, 353; Mayson, 123; Milton, 342; Mount Vernon, 135; Benjamin H. Neely, 162; Newton, 125; North Avenue, 507; Northwestern, 147; Ocea, 126; Perkerson, 275; Rico, 78; Riley, 174; E. Rivers, 634; Rock Spring, 66; Roswell, 219; Sandtown, 88; Marion Smith, 370; Union City, 198; Warsaw, 113; West Haven, 211; S. R. Young, 363; and Garden Hills, 376.

The schools at Birmingham and Morgan Falls had not reported.

The total first-day enrollment does not include some 40 Negro schools throughout the county.

Probe of Crash May Be Made By Grand Jury

Foreman Studying Accident Involving Atlanta Police Car.

Grand jury probe of the crash of a police automobile into a dairy truck early Sunday morning on the Buford highway near Cheshire Bridge road became a possibility yesterday as R. W. Oldschuneit, foreman of the Fulton inquisitorial body, announced he was "looking into the matter."

Meantime, City Attorney Jack Savage ruled that any liability was upon the officers involved, Radio Patrolmen F. A. Rhodes and J. C. Varnum, and not the city. Rhodes, the driver, was painfully hurt.

It was charged by numerous witnesses that the machine, pursuing an alleged speeder, ran between 85 and 100 miles an hour without headlights and that the driver was trying to pass the pursued machine on a curve when the crash wrecked the truck of D. A. Pirkle, of Route 1, Doraville.

Pirkle said a lieutenant from Police Chief Hornsby's office agreed to pay for repairs, but this was denied. The city automobile also was wrecked.

Investigations were under way by city and county police, but no charges had yet been filed against the officers. DeKalb county police captured the pursued motorist, Henry Adams, by shooting his tires.

Cobb's 1940 Tax Digest Shows Half Million Gain
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Tax Receiver Helen C. Griffin said today Cobb county's 1940 tax digest shows an aggregate total of $10,202,440, an increase of $594,650 over last year's mark.

Exemptions, however, she said, reduces the net total to $6,616,715, or a net gain of $570,325. Miss Griffin's report shows gains in the number of tax returns made, polls, returns on intangibles, household furniture, merchandise and automobiles.

Restriction Sought On Night Teaching

The board of education yesterday referred to the personnel committee a communication seeking to bar teachers of day school from teaching in nights schools of Atlanta and urging the board to provide principals for every one of the city schools.

Signed by Mrs. R. L. Turnan, Miss Sue Methvin, and Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris, the letter pointed out that a better distribution of jobs would be obtained if night school work were given to teachers now not engaged in teaching.

A rule was adopted granting leaves to school employees called to military service either voluntarily or through draft.

A. Montgomery Estate Exceeds Million Dollars

Montgomery Jr., and Talley Montgomery, were left $25,000 each, and with H. Bruce Montgomery Sr., the property upon which the Griffin Coca-Cola plant is located.

Charly Bequests.

The Methodist Orphans Home in Decatur was left $500 and the same amount was bequeathed the Hebrew Orphans Home here. A $20,000 trust was set up for the Susan Montgomery Memorial Methodist church at Madison, Miss., in honor of his mother, and the Methodist Orphans Home at Jackson, Miss., was given $25,000 with an additional $25,000 to go to it if the Montgomery estate is valued by the trustees in excess of $2,000,000.

He gave $1,000 to the Old Ladies' Home at Jackson also.

A nephew, Arthur J. Montgomery, was left $6,000, to be paid in equal monthly installments, but only at the discretion of L. F. Montgomery.

Mr. Montgomery bequeathed sums to his servants also. He left Walter Beal $500, Mary Smart $500, Katrina Reid $250, Walter Drane $100 and Rosa Williams $50.

Minta J. Wear was left the old Johnson homestead in Jackson, Miss., in Mr. Montgomery's will, but was cut out by a later codicil, the house being left in the estate.

Provides for Cuts.
He provided that if the net value of the estate, after expenses and taxes, was less than $2,000,000, then the bequests were to be cut down proportionately. Lawyers said only that they estimated the estate to be in excess of $1,000,000.

Whether the income from the residue of the estate shall go to L. F. Montgomery's child or children during the 20 years it must be held together was left to the discretion of the trustees. He asked them to consider their necessity, what the child or children have done and their attitude toward life and their parents before distributing the income.

Mr. Montgomery provided that after the death of his sister, Kate M. Hall, two-thirds of the $50,000 trust fund should go to his nephew, Will Hall, and one-third to his nephew, Ethel Hall.

His original will was made in 1931 and revised in a codicil in 1937 with a third codicil being added in 1938.

The Army IN GEORGIA

Atlanta's doctors are rallying to the colors, Fourth Corps Area headquarters reported yesterday with the announcement that 11 of the city's physicians had recently been commissioned in the medical corps reserve.

The doctors and their military rank are: Dr. Cyrus Warren Strickler Jr., 21 Brookhaven drive, first lieutenant; Dr. Bernard Preston Wolff, 1708 Peachtree street, first lieutenant; Dr. Daniel Collier Elkin, 735 Penn avenue, lieutenant colonel; Dr. Ira Alfred Ferguson, 353 Argonne drive, major; Dr. Richard Hugh Wood, 1657 Harvard road, lieutenant colonel; Dr. John Brunson Cross, 155 Clairmont avenue, Decatur, captain; Dr. James Park Hanner, 384 Peachtree, captain; Dr. Benjamin Russell Burke, 1996 Ponce de Leon avenue, captain; Dr. Launcelot Minor Blackford, 104 Ponce de Leon avenue, major, and Dr. Edward Groves Jones, Grady hospital, first lieutenant.

Other reserve announcements made yesterday included the commissioning of Eugene Knox Maxwell, of Lexington, as second lieutenant, cavalry, and the commissioning of Wilbur Smith Jr., of Tennesse as an infantry second lieutenant.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(P) The War Department announced today that Army reserve officers below the grade of captain with no means of support other than wages and compensation for personal services may resign prior to, or within 20 days after, entry into active military service.

This, the Department said, was in conformity with a recent act permitting the department to call up the reserves.

THREE TECH STUDENTS TO GET PILOT TRAINING.

Three Georgia Tech students will leave this week for Maxwell Field, Ala., where they will begin instruction courses for flying cadets sponsored by the United States Army Air Corps.

They are Howard Fleming, of 815 Ponce de Leon avenue; Carl E. Pennington, of Decatur; and Dan Pardue, of Nashville, Tenn.

At the field they will join a fourth Tech student, James T. Gribble, of Sylva, S. C., who began the course two months ago.

GEORGIAN ASSIGNED TO CALIFORNIA STATION

MOFFETT FIELD, Cal., Sept. 9. Reporting for his term of active duty for tactical training, following the successful completion of the flying cadet course at Randolph and Kelly fields, Texas, Lieutenant Ben S. Brown, formerly of Hawkinsville, Ga., son of Mrs. E. C. Brown of this city, has been assigned to this Air Corps station.

He is a graduate of Hawkinsville High school; Emory Junior College, Oxford, Ga., and Emory University, Atlanta, and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Lieutenant Brown was accepted as a flying cadet at Fort Benning, Ga., on November 8, 1939, and received his commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve on July 27, 1940. He will serve as a reserve officer on active duty for a period of three years, unless he wins a Regular Army commission, by taking one of the annual examinations given by the Army. He has been assigned to the 20th Pursuit Group here.

COL. B. M. BAILEY RETURNS TO ATLANTA

The return of Colonel Benjamin M. Bailey to Atlanta was announced yesterday by the War Department in Washington.

Now on duty with the National Guard Bureau in Washington, Colonel Bailey will be detailed to the Fourth Corps Area Headquarters as a supervising officer of guard affairs, according to the announcement.

A native Pennsylvanian, Colonel Bailey served with distinction overseas during the World War as field artillery officer of the Second Division. He is a graduate of the Army War College and the Command and General Staff School.

Stationed here several times during his career, he is married to the former Rosalie Davis, of Atlanta. The Bailey's son, Benjamin Mart Jr., a recent graduate of West Point, is now stationed at Fort Oglethorpe.

AUGUST RECRUITS DOUBLE JUNE, JULY

FORT BENNING, Ga., Sept. 10. A small army—or, to be exact, a total of 9,486 men—started the processing procedure at Fort Benning's Recruit Detachment in the three months' period ending September 1, figures released by post headquarters disclose.

The report shows that August was twice as good for recruiting as was either of the two months immediately preceding it. A total of 5,133 men were received in August. For both June and July the total was 4,353.

Of the total only 517 were rejected, largely due to physical defects discovered at the careful final examination to which the Medical Department subjects every recruit just before the enlistment oath is to be administered.

Practically every one of the numerous organizations of the post, representative of almost all branches of the army, had its strength increased by the influx. Largest gains were registered by the following organizations, the number enlisted being indicated with each: 67th Armored Regiment, 486; 29th Infantry, 221; 83d Field Artillery, 434; 66th Armored Regiment, 524; Medical Detachment, 351; 4th Engineer Battalion, 204; Quartermaster Corps, 101; 68th Armored Regiment, 372; 8th Infantry, 677; 5th Medical Battalion, 166; 4th Signal Service Company, 109; 42d Engineers, 537; 41st Infantry, 692; Second Reconnaissance Battalion, 179; 14th Field Artillery, 476; 14th Quartermaster Battalion, 198; 48th Medical Battalion, 186; 87th Engineers, 176; 29 Field Artillery, 468, and the 78th Field Artillery, 482.

The Fort Benning Recruit Detachment is operated by the 29th Infantry, under its regional commander, Colonel Oscar W. Griswold.

During the three-month period of the report the unit was commanded by Second Lieutenant Claire E. Hutchin Jr., of the 29th Infantry. Effective September 1, Lieutenant Hutchin was relieved to become assistant regimental plans and training officer, and Major James R. Simpson, who recently reported for duty with the 29th Infantry, was placed in charge.

LABOR UNIT WORKERS TO BE GIVEN LEAVE

Commissioner of Labor Ben T. Huie yesterday issued an administrative order protecting the jobs of employees in the Labor Department who may be called into military service.

In his order, addressed to all division heads of the department, Huie granted a year's leave of absence to all members of the department who may be called for National Guard, Reserve or other military duty.

Colonel Sheffal B. Coleman, commanding officer of the 118th Field Artillery, Savannah, has notified Huie that he has been called to report for duty September 16. He is a field deputy of the Unemployment Compensation division. Huie said a number of others in the department are subject to call.

The commissioner, who himself is a major in the Georgia National Guard, said he was anxious to cooperate with federal authorities in the national defense program.

PIPELINE PAY-TRIOTISM ?

An age-old trick of the politician is to wait until the eleventh hour, on the very eve of an election, and then make some statement which he hopes his opponent will not have time to answer.

For weeks the railroads of Georgia have presented frankly and fully to the people of this State their reasons for objecting to the building of gasoline pipe lines in Georgia.

Realizing that the people of Georgia do not intend to cripple their railroads to gratify the selfish ambition of a few Oil Companies; that the people propose to safeguard the tax revenue received from the railroads, which is so vital to the maintenance of our public schools, and that they do not propose to throw thousands of railroad workers out of employment, the Southeastern Pipe Line Company, in a last desperate effort to have the State require the people to give them their private lands to satisfy their selfish ambition, now, at this late hour, attempt to garb themselves in the robes of PAY-TRIOTISM and to advocate the construction of a gasoline pipe line in Georgia in the interest of National defense.

WE DO NOT KNOW WHAT STATEMENT
MR. STETTINIUS, WHO IS A MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMISSION,
MAY HAVE MADE UPON THIS SUBJECT;

BUT WE DO KNOW THAT THIS PROPOSITION WAS SUBMITTED TO THE MEMBER OF THE DEFENSE COMMISSION IN CHARGE OF ALL TRANSPORTATION, AND THAT HE REFUSED TO APPROVE IT.

The Pipe Line Company apparently does not remember that during the World War the railroads handled for the Government, promptly and efficiently, all of the gasoline which was offered to them and were complimented for the efficient job which they did.

They do not remember that the pipe line which they propose to use extends through the interior of Georgia, and does not serve the Atlantic Seaboard where the gasoline requirements of our navy will be greatest.

They do not remember that the gasoline which they want to transport from Port St. Joe must first reach that port by boat and will be subject to aerial and submarine enemy attack.

They do not remember that their pipe line will have a fixed definite location and can be easily attacked from the air and that a few men, with a few sticks of dynamite, could destroy the whole line from Port St. Joe to Chattanooga overnight.

They do not remember that the railroads have many routes and many trains by which they can transport gasoline by rail, and if one line fails it can be diverted to another, and that their pipe line has no such alternate route in Georgia.

They do not remember that gasoline in transit in cars on railroad tracks is a movable object and cannot be as successfully attacked from the air as a stationary one.

They do not remember that a railroad train can be guarded by troops and anti-aircraft equipment placed on the train itself, and that in order to protect the pipe line, even with any hope of success, it would have to be lined with soldiers and anti-aircraft guns from one end of it to another.

The railroads, in time of war, have met every demand of the Government and from the days of the old "General" down to the present have been one of our main arteries of defense. They will continue so to be.

Commissioners of 102 Georgia counties have formally and vigorously gone on record in opposition to the proposed pipe line—proof that the people of Georgia do not want to cripple their railroads in this period of emergency so that they will be unable to give to the country should war come—and God forbid it—the maximum in service and efficiency.

Aerodynamic 1941 Buicks Now on Display

New Lines Priced From Medium to De Luxe Fields.

Buick's 1941 line of motor cars, featuring compound carburetion new aerodynamic bodies and more powerful and efficient engines, are now being shown in dealer's showrooms in Atlanta. The 1941 lines covers the price range from the lower medium-priced field to the de luxe passenger car field in the upper bracket for which an entirely new line of Buick series 90 limited cars have been designated this year.

The new engines of valve-in-head straight eight design have unusually high compression ratios making them available for the new high octane fuel. Due to the use of two twin carburetors, greater fuel economy is achieved and the power materially increased.

Buick's style engineers have given broader range and greater utility to the torpedo type of body introduced by Buick last year. Unusually wide with five feet of shoulder room in the front seats, the cars are fully streamlined. They take full advantage of the teardrop design which has been carried to its most complete detail in the new sedan body which is an attractive coupe-sedan of the two-door type, accommodating six passengers.

The new cars are fleet and graceful, with smooth contours and scientific placing of windows and accessories to provide the utmost in both appearance and utility.

For the first time in more than five years, according to the engineers, a completely modern, streamlined, and fully appointed car has been brought to the fine car field in the new Buick series 90 limited group with which this division of General Motors will go to the fine car market in 1941. This line will include, besides regular and formal sedans and limousines, a complete line of custom cars to meet every requirement.

20 Gray Veterans To Attend Reunion

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10.—(P)—Approximately 20 old soldiers are expected at the 47th annual reunion of Georgia's Confederate veterans next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Only 85 out of an army of 125,000 are surviving.

Adjutant General L. Thomas (Pat) Gillen, of the United Confederate Veterans, will preside at sessions for the chief officer, General M. Y. Griggs.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall, who is judge advocate general of the U. S. V., will deliver one of the principal addresses Tuesday. Open house entertainment in Milledgeville homes feature the Monday and Tuesday programs.

The veterans are to attend a picnic and an old-fashioned dance at Indian Island Club Tuesday. General J. R. Jones, 95-year-old veteran who broke a leg two years ago, recently did a jig at the Confederate home in Atlanta to show he's in prime for the dance.

Small wonder that the first thought of young couples is to own the house which shall become the setting for their family life. Yours is being offered for sale in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

New Hudson Six and Super-Six (in the lowest and low price fields); New Hudson Commodore Six and Eight and Commodore Custom (in the moderate price field). MORE CAR for LESS MONEY in Every Popular Price Class.

THINK OF being able to get, in a car in the lowest price field, a rich harmony of line and color that is more completely beautiful than anything you have seen, up to now, in very costly cars.

No wonder buyers of 1941 cars are frankly amazed when they come to Hudson showrooms. Symphonic Styling is a brilliant example of the extra value made possible by Hudson's long-standing engineering leadership.

Your Money Buys MORE
Engineering leadership brings extra value all through these 1941 Hudsons. You get more size and room, including the biggest luggage compartment ever built into a sedan body. You get more for your money in smooth riding and easy driving, a new and finer Synchronized Silent Mesh Transmission, lighter, smoother clutch action, longer wheelbases.

Safety That's Beyond Price
In addition to all this, these 1941 Hudsons are America's Safest Cars. No other cars have Patented Double-Safe Brakes. If hydraulics should ever fail (as they can in any car through leakage due to accident or service neglect), you just push farther on the same foot pedal and STOP. No other cars have Patented Auto-Poise Front Wheel Control . . . extra protection even if a tire blows.

New 1941 Hudsons are now on display. More for your money in every popular price class, beginning with the lowest. Come and see!

Women Voters' League To Hold Open House

The League of Women Voters will hold open house tonight at its headquarters in the Forsyth building to receive election returns. Old election charts showing the positions of counties in former key races will be on hand for comparison with current primary returns. Also, descriptive information in regard to each county will be available and will lend interest to announcements as they come over the air. Members of the League and friends are invited to attend.

In addition to Josephine Wilkins, state president, and Mrs. J. D. Thomas, Atlanta president, the following will serve as hosts: Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee Counts, Christine Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Grist, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Chubb and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hirsch.

Cone Qualifies To Run Again Against Arnold

All 16 Eligibles in Run-over Primary Ready for Balloting.

John L. Cone, recorder of the traffic division, yesterday beat the deadline and qualified to run in the September 18 run-over against Luke S. Arnold, Atlanta attorney, who was high vote-getter in last Wednesday's three-cornered race for the position. Charles M. Ford, former city alderman, was eliminated in the contest, leaving the field to Arnold and Cone.

As all 16 eligible contestants in the run-over primary qualified, members of the old city Democratic executive committee laid tentative plans to hold the run-over after Watson W. Cary, newly elected fifth ward committeeman, announced he has no desire to hold the run-over.

Not Interested.—Seab Sharp, committee chairman who was defeated for one of the third ward places in last Wednesday's election, and L. Glenn Dewberry, secretary of the old committee, who won election again as a committeeman from the second ward, said they were informed by Cary that he is not interested in taking over duties of committeeman until after the run-over has been wound up.

Cary obtained a ruling from City Attorney Jack C. Savage which held that the newly elected committeemen were qualified to take over their duties and begin functioning as the legal Democratic executive committee immediately after the results of last Wednesday's election were declared.

Other committee members also said they were not anxious to conduct the run-over races, and Dewberry asserted that under the law the committee holding a primary must file a report with the city clerk within 30 days after a primary is held. He added that because of the run-over, the old committee could not comply with the law because all the nominations before the old group have not yet been settled. He interpreted the law to mean that the new committee is empowered to begin serving on completion of holding of the primary, a condition he said would not be met until after the run-over results have been declared.

Meeting To Be Set.—A meeting of the old committee to lay plans for holding the run-over probably will be set within the next few days. A tentative ballot for the run-over was prepared and the official ballot will read as follows for the 16 qualified candidates in the eight run-over races:

TAX COLLECTOR.
First Ward: E. E. CHARLES L. MATHEWS FOR RECORDER.
Second Ward: LUKE S. ARNOLD JOHN L. CONE FOR CITY COUNCIL.
First Ward: CHARLES L. CHOSEWOOD JAMES E. JACKSON
Second Ward: E. E. ALLEN F. A. MINOR

Favorable August Boosts Crop Yield Prospects
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP) The Agriculture Department reported today that favorable growing conditions during August boosted crop yield prospects at least 5 per cent and virtually assured an "abundant" harvest.

The department said that during August production prospects for major crops increased as follows: Grain sorghums, 20 per cent; cotton, 12 per cent; spring wheat, 11 per cent; oats, 8 per cent; barley and flax, 5 per cent; beans, 3 per cent; corn, potatoes and sweet potatoes, 2 per cent, and sugar beets, 1 per cent.

New Resuscitation Method Reported

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP) A new method of reviving persons partially drowned or overcome by gas was reported today in the Journal of Modern Medicine.

Instead of laying the victim face-downward, Dr. Palm Praest, of Copenhagen, advises placing the victim on his right side and alternately pressing on the ribs and pulling the right arm backward.

This treatment first forces air out of the lungs and then pulls it back in more effectively than the old "prone pressure" method of resuscitation, Dr. Praest said.

Eleven Rumanian Generals Ousted

BUCHAREST, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain their appointments from former King Carol were ousted summarily today by General Ion Antonescu in his drive to rid the nation of Carol's influence.

The generals included former Premier George Argeseanu and former War Minister Ion Iliescu. All were said to have "practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state."

By decree, Antonescu also outlawed the use of the abdicated monarch's name as patron for any military unit, park or street.

French Cabinet Votes Action Against Jews

VICHY, France, Sept. 10.—(AP) The council of ministers, meeting under Marshal Petain, decided today to take steps "of national security" against Jewish and other emigres who have taken refuge in France and are considered dangerous to the country.

British Fliers
Blast Berlin
And Hamburg

Barge Concentrations
Also Struck; Raging
Fires Started.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Lashing out in one of their strongest aerial assaults of the war, relays of British planes early today bombed Berlin's vital utilities and started raging fires in four large German naval dockyards with tons of explosives, the air ministry reported.

Hurling their bombs upon Berlin and other objectives in defiance of Adolf Hitler's threats to "utterly erase" British cities if the R. A. F. attacks continued, the squadrons of British bombers were said to have spread a path of flame and destruction across Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

The British night counter-offensive, through bad weather that obscured targets, was carried out while German raiders were bombing the heart of London and adding to a toll of about 600 dead and nearly 3,000 injured in three days of siege.

Naval Bases Hit.
Naval bases, shipping, railroad centers, arms plants, airdromes, Nazi "Big Bertha" guns, barge concentrations along the French and Belgian channel coasts and German ships in Norwegian waters felt the fury of the R. A. F.'s widespread counter-offensive, it was said.

The barge concentrations—constant threat of an attempted Nazi invasion of the British Isles—were heavily bombed along the Nezi-held French and Belgian coasts. The Belgian capital of Brussels was attacked by relays of light bombers.

A power plant at Berlin was bombed and the Neukeln Gas Works on Berlin outskirts was said to have been squarely hit by bombs dropped by the British planes which flew 600 miles through bad weather to press home their attack.

"Bombs were seen to burst on this target and heavy explosions occurred in the course of the attack which began about midnight and was carried out despite intense anti-aircraft fire from ground defenses," the air ministry said.

"Big Berthas" Bombed.
Germany's "Big Bertha" guns planted around Cap Gris Nez, on the French coast, 22 miles across the channel from Dover, also were bombed from the air during lulls in a duel of British and German long-range guns which began Monday night and was resumed early today.

While the attacks on Berlin were under way other British light bombers were dropping tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs on the four Nazi naval bases—Hamburg, Bremen, Wilhelmshaven and Kiel—starting leaping fires, according to returning pilots.

The great seaport of Hamburg, attacked for the second consecutive night, was said to have suffered its heaviest assault when the British bombers heaped "tons of high explosives and many incendiaries" upon its naval dockyards for a half hour.

Docks Damaged.
"The docks already severely damaged by the previous night's raid were repeatedly straddled by sticks of heavy caliber bombs," the communiqué said.

At Bakenhafen, warehouses were set afire and "some of the many fires which broke out in the target area still were visible long after the raiders left the city," it was added.

A portion of the British attacking squadrons bombed the German barge concentrations at Cap

ATTEMPT COMPROMISE—History is in the making as the two versions of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill reaches the conference table with a joint senate-house committee gathered round to attempt a compromise. British Drop
Self-Igniting
'Calling Cards'

Homes, Barns, Forests Destroyed by New War Weapon.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—(P)—British fliers have dropped millions of self-igniting "calling cards" over Germany in the last month, apparently to fire crops and forests, authorized German spokesmen charged today.

Many persons, including children, have been burned by handling the little instruments of war without knowing their danger, and barns, farmhouses, grain stacks, grain fields and small tracts of forest have been destroyed, it was declared.

Only the fact that various Nazi party groups have been assiduously collecting the little cards and the further fact that bad weather prevented them from drying out so that they were ready to ignite, saved the country from many more casualties, and damages, this source declared.

The cards, which earlier were erroneously described to correspondents as about a foot square, are actually about two inches square. A single plane can carry 250,000. Apparently small bundles have been scattered over lairs and Boulogne, on either side of the German "Big Bertha" positions at Cap Gris Nez, the gun emplacements themselves and other moored barges in the Belgian port of Ostend, the air ministry said.

Three British planes admittedly were lost in the attacks. A power station at Brussels was wrecked and set on fire. At Bremen, "more great fires were started than repeated hits were registered on docks and shipbuilding yards."

"Direct hits also were scored on the naval station at Wilhelmshafen where heavy bombs were clearly seen to burst on one end of the naval barracks," the communiqué continued.

"Another line of bombs which overshot the main dockyard burst across a minesweeper depot and straddled a pontoon in the harbor."

Raid on Kiel.
The raid on Kiel was said to have added more heavy destruction.

The railroad yards at Brussels were bombed for more than an hour, it was reported, and "bombs which fell across the south end of the yards caused an immediate outbreak of fire, followed 10 minutes later by what the raiding crew described as a 'terrific explosion.'"

"A few minutes later another direct hit was scored on the target causing a second violent explosion, and a fierce outbreak of fire was visible for 40 minutes."

Other British night raiders attacked German docks at Wismar, a blast furnace and railroad siding at the German armaments center at Essen, seat of the great Krupp works, as well as airdromes at Diepholz, Hoya, Celle, Cuxhaven and Schiphol, it was said.

Important railroad junctions at Hanover, Celle, Branstorf near Osnabruck and Krefeld also were bombed and at Celle two separate groups of fires were said to have been started, followed by enormous explosions.

For the third successive night concentrations of German shipping in Ostend harbor were heavily attacked, it was said, and "fires and explosions were seen in all parts of the harbor."

Germany by many planes, particularly in Westphalia, Hanover, the Harz mountains and southern middle Germany.

(British communiqués have described recent incendiary raids on the Harz mountains. Black forest and elsewhere to explode hidden ammunition dumps.)

These cardboard devices, German authorities said, consist of a small quantity of phosphorus in the middle covered by gun cotton. When the card reaches the ground it dries out, and the sunlight or the action of the air's oxygen ignites it. A flame about eight inches high flares up.

Spokesmen who conducted a demonstration for foreign correspondents in an alleyway near the propaganda ministry said the cardboards were a constant threat since they might lie for ten years before igniting if conditions were not favorable before that time. The cardboards used in the demonstration burst into flame after about ten minutes.

LONDON ADMITS USE OF NEW WEAPON

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—An authoritative British source admitted tonight that British fliers are using a new incendiary weapon described as a "self-igniting leaf," obviously the basis of German charges that cards dropped on German soil are causing damaging fires.

The British source, declined to give the size, shape or composition of these fiery "calling cards" or any other technical data.

He said, however, "the accusations made by the Germans that the leaves cause poisoning is false," but added, "if handled, they would of course cause burns, just as any other incendiary bomb would."

Barkley Denies CCC

Clashing With Defense

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(P)—A charge by Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, that the Civilian Conservation Corps officials were "interfering with national defense" brought a denial from Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, majority leader, today.

Johnson said the officials were trying to enlist young men at $30 a month when the army offered only $21. He demanded an investigation of a recent CCC ruling which, he said, eliminated a congressional requirement that CCC applicants must be in need, and enabled the "son of a millionaire" to join the corps.

Nazi Invasion
Threat Nearer,
Britain Fears

Raids Believed Designed To Divert Defense
Planes From Coast.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 11. (UP)—Reports of heavy concentrations of Nazi troops and ships across the channel today led to an increased belief that the threat of a German invasion is nearer.

Responsible British quarters speculated that the fierce aerial bombardment of London might be part of Adolf Hitler's strategy for an attempted surprise landing of troops on the English coast.

These attacks, it was suggested, might be designed to:

- 1—Disrupt the port of London and the converging land communications around the capital.
- 2—Provide a diversion to draw a great bulk of the British defense planes away from the threatened coastline.

It was assumed that any actual invasion would be timed to coincide with an unusually heavy air offensive against the Thames estuary and London, aimed at confusing and distracting the British air force command.

The reports tonight indicated that the Germans have more than enough troops along the channel coast to make up an "initial striking force" for an invasion of England, to seize a bridgehead and hold it until reinforcements could arrive.

Such a force, it was said, would be intended to operate along a relatively short stretch of the British coast and probably would comprise not more than five or six crack divisions, or about 65,000 to 80,000 men.

The shelling of the Dover area by Nazi "Big Berthas" planted on the French coast at Cap Gris Nez, last night and early today, was regarded in some quarters as a sort of smoke-screen for Hitler's invasion preparations, which appear to have been seriously hampered by nightly British bombing attacks.

House Conferees Refuse

Age Bracket.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Senate conferees tonight made two offers to expand to as high as 39 years the age limit of men who would be subject to conscription, but house conferees refused to yield from the 21-to-45 age bracket contained in their version of the draft bill.

The Conference Committee, after meeting for more than six hours, failed to reach an agreement on the major differences between senate and house versions of conscription legislation and recessed until tomorrow.

Chairman Morris Sheppard, of the six-man senate delegation, said no attempt was made to dispose of the 60-day draft delay provision in the house bill. Nor did the conferees reach the discussion stage on different versions of the industrial "draft" proposal.

The senate version of the conscription measure calls for registration and potential draft of men 21 to 31. The house age bracket is 21 to 45.

Sheppard revealed that senate conferees had offered two compromise proposals on the age

Willkie Urges
Defeat of Delay
In Conscription

G.O.P. Nominee 'Gratified' at Republican Success in Maine.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 10.—(P)—Amid the bustle of final preparations for his 18-state western stumping tour, Wendell L. Willkie urged today the defeat of the house-approved amendment to delay military conscription 60 days in favor of voluntary enlistment.

The Republican presidential nominee said in a statement to newspapermen: "I hope that as a result of the conference between the house and senate conferees on the selective service bill the Fish amendment is eliminated."

Willkie's statement, drawn up at 6 a. m. and distributed to reporters two hours later, also said he was "enormously gratified" by the Republican victory in Maine.

He said the amendment would raise the range of the senate bill to apply to men 21 to 35, inclusive, and another to apply to those 21 to 39, inclusive. Sheppard said the question of age limit was discussed for more than an hour by the conferees.

Remember—"It's ALL in the EXAMINATION"
DR. L. N. HUFF, 54 Broad St., Healey Bldg.

YOUR STATE SENATOR
Should Represent
ALL THE PEOPLE

I want to call the attention of Fulton County voters to the significant fact that my opponent in the race for the State Senate was put into this race by the railroads.

I want to further point out that these railroads are not only telling their employees that they must vote against me, but are forcing their employees to campaign for my opponent, in another effort to tell you who your State Senator should be.

Hundreds of railway employees have been compelled by the railroads, against their wishes and against their better judgment, to make a house-to-house canvass for my opponent . . . ringing doorbells, handing out literature, distributing cards . . . driven by the fear that they will lose their jobs if they don't campaign for my opponent.

Furthermore, letters from railroad executives have been mailed by the thousands into the homes of Fulton County citizens, insisting upon my defeat because of their own selfish interests, and for no other asserted reason than that my opponent, if elected, has pledged himself to advocate, at any cost, legislation which is desirable to the railroad management, regardless of the public interest.

Throughout Fulton County, there are today being distributed thousands of handbills. I charge that the railroads are also responsible for these, and that they contain statements made in an effort to inject prejudice and to deceive the voters, and so timed as to give me no chance to answer. In some instances, these statements are on their face ridiculous, for I am charged with responsibility for existing water rates, although it is a matter of common knowledge that these rates are fixed by the Atlanta City Council, and by that body alone.

My opponent was formerly employed as assistant to an executive of one of the large railroads who are opposing me.

Not only does he openly admit that the railroads are his main interest in running this race, but he has failed to say one word about anything else he stands for. He has professed absolutely no interest in good government, economy and efficiency, tax issues, or the health of our citizens and the schooling of our children.

I have clearly stated my platform, and my record speaks for itself.

I have consistently advocated better school and health programs, all labor measures benefiting the working man and woman, Civil Service legislation, a secret ballot for all county and state elections, lower taxes, and honest, economical government.

My opponent ran for county commissioner in this county in 1938, and without his present railroad support, received only 958 votes out of 23,069 votes cast.

Many of the railway workers in this county with whom he was formerly employed openly resent being forced by the railroads to oppose me, and hundreds of them have advised me of their support and their vote on Wednesday.

I am addressing this message to all Fulton County voters, whose support I deeply appreciate, and I pledge to all the people of Fulton County a continuation of conscientious service.

Shot From Sky, U. S. Flyer Tells Of Air Warfare

Declares RAF Undaunted by Germans' Numerical Superiority.

By H. J. J. SARGINT.
Written for North American Newspaper Alliance.

MAIDSTONE, Kent, England, Sept. 10.—(By Cable)—In a delightful country mansion in Kent, Arthur Gerald Donahue, a young American airman, is recuperating after an encounter with German raiders.

Donahue, who is 27, hails from Laredo, Texas, and now is a pilot officer in the Royal Air Force. Back home in the United States, he was a commercial pilot and a flying instructor at Laredo. He has had nine years' flying experience. At one time he was reported to be the youngest transport pilot in the United States.

Donahue came to England during the second week in July because, to use his own words, "I wanted to help in some way or another."

Donahue continued, "I asked to be posted to one of the squadrons operating near the English Channel as at that time that was the only place where fighting was going on. I got my wish."

"The invasion was being expected then, so I figured it out that I might be able to play some small part in preventing it. Well, by the end of July I was where I wanted to be, and it not long before I was in action. I had three good fights and several skirmishes."

Asked whether he had shot down a raider Donahue said that when a fellow was in an air fight it was extremely difficult to know exactly what happened.

"Anyway, in one case I gave a raider enough lead to sink him," Donahue said. "But the R. A. F. never claim a victim unless the loss can be proved beyond all doubt."

"I came to grief on August 12 when I ran into three of the latest German Heinkels. I got on the trail of one when my machine, a Spitfire, was put partially out of control. I could not maneuver it quickly enough to avoid another one which came up behind. I had to bail out at about 6,000 feet, but I escaped with burns."

"I have thoroughly enjoyed my association with the R. A. F. They are a wonderful bunch of boys. Their attitude is amazing. No matter what the odds are against them they go into action as though they were going to a football match. They know they will be outnumbered, but that doesn't matter. And they are taking a terrible toll of Germans, both in machines and crews."

Nazis Execute Noted Hero of Warsaw Siege

Firing Squad Kills Leader Who Refused To Surrender City.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The British Press Association said tonight that Stefan Starzinski, 47, lord mayor of Warsaw during the German siege, was executed in a firing squad on September 1, the anniversary of the German invasion of Poland.

His refusal to surrender the city earned him the title of "stubborn Stefan."

A foremost Polish patriot, Starzinski rallied the defenders of Warsaw again and again during the siege last September.

"German bombs have no effect on us," he declared over the radio. Every defender of the city was a hero, he said.

On September 9, 1939, he broadcast an appeal to Britain and France to come to the aid of Poland. He said Warsaw was standing the siege "with unbroken spirit" and commented that German planes had "drenched" the city with pamphlets demanding its surrender.

Fulton Holds First Civil Service Test

Fulton county's first civil service examination was held last night at the courthouse with 43 applicants reporting to contest for the position of assistant probation officer.

The examination was held by a special committee appointed by the superior court judges at the request of recent grand juries. The members were Aubrey Milam, former grand jury foreman, Miss Agnes Anderson, of the State Department of Public Welfare, and Stephens, Mitchell, representing the Atlanta Bar Association.

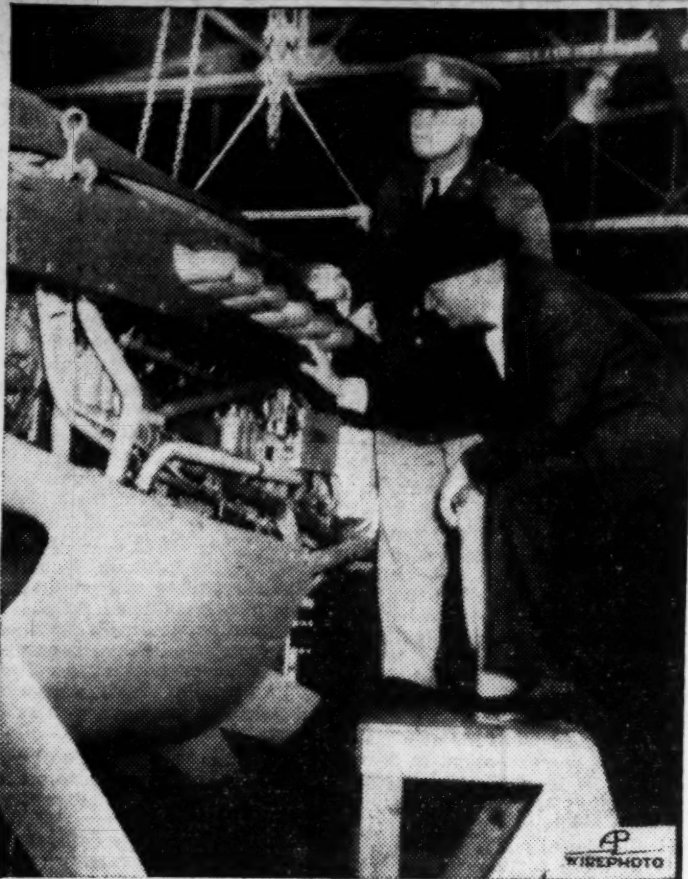

Results of the exam will be made public within two weeks.

Bermuda-Lisbon Flight Is Made

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Marking the first step in long-range plans to span the Atlantic by air from New York to Europe without halting, a Pan-American Airways clipper today completed the first non-stop commercial flight from Bermuda to Lisbon, Portugal.

It was the first such attempt in regular trans-Atlantic commercial service and was over the longest non-stop link on a regularly operated airline—3,112 miles.

The ship—the Atlantic Clipper—carried six passengers and 671 pounds of mail. Heretofore the clippers have stopped at the Azores for refueling.

PORE OVER PURSUITER—General H. H. Arnold (in uniform), chief of the army air corps, and Defense Commission Chairman William S. Knudsen examined a P-40 pursuit plane at the Curtiss hangar, Buffalo airport, yesterday.

U. S. Supreme In Air Field, Knudsen Says

Confident of Building More, Better Planes Than Any Nation.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Amid the clangor of a quarter-mile long airplane factory turning out fighter planes at the rate of 120 a month, William S. Knudsen, of the National Defense Commission, smiled grimly today and announced his confidence that the United States can turn out more and better military aircraft than any other nation.

On the last day of a nationwide inspection tour of 16 plane building plants, undertaken with Major General H. H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, Knudsen visited the Curtiss Aeroplane Corporation factory, then flew to Maryland to complete his tour at the Glenn L. Martin and Fairchild plants.

The Curtiss plant, building more combat aircraft than any other American factory, is concentrating now on the speedy P-40, sensational successor to the P-36A which impressed Allied aviators with its maneuverability, and has already delivered to the of mistaking the government district.

Foreign correspondents who were taken on a quick tour of damaged areas were told that the British raiders apparently were trying to hit government quarters.

This comment immediately aroused speculation whether the German air force might retaliate, making Downing street in London and the houses of parliament their targets.

The raiders also hit one apartment house, a gymnasium and with blasts in the streets broke hundreds of windows.

The most extensive damage was done to an apartment house where three persons were injured.

Incendiary bombs fell on a hospital roof. None of the 280 persons in the hospital was injured.

German Bombs Hunt for Reds, Wreck British Nazis Defended Baptist Mission By FBI Chief

Dr. Louie D. Newton Told of Damage in Cablegram.

The British Baptist Mission house, situated in the central portion of London and headquarters for the far-flung mission activities of the British Baptist church, was wrecked by German bombs yesterday, according to a cablegram received here by Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church and associate secretary of the Baptist World Alliance.

The cablegram from Dr. B. Grey Griffith, secretary of the British Baptist Mission Society, simply said: "British Baptist Mission House wrecked by bomb today."

Dr. Newton, who had visited the mission house numerous times, recalled that the historic landmark was situated at 19 Furrival street, in the east central portion of London. He said the mission society had occupied the building since 1792.

Dr. Newton said the mission house was about one mile from the historic Baptist Church House, headquarters of the World Baptist Alliance and in which Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke has his offices.

"This cable from Dr. Griffith," Dr. Newton said, "brings home to the people of the United States the gravity of the ravages that are now going on in London, and will serve to quicken the purpose of our people to do everything within our power to aid our sorely stricken neighbors in England."

Hoover Answers Minister Who Protested Civil Rights 'Abuse.'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP) Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the FBI, told a Detroit minister in correspondence made public today that "it is time to draw a line of demarcation between liberty and license" in the exercise of civil rights.

Hoover thus replied to a protest by the Rev. Owen Knox, president of the Civil Rights Federation, against a Michigan FBI official's call upon police chiefs for names and addresses of persons expressing sympathy for Communists or Nazis.

The FBI chief, refusing to disavow his subordinate's action, replied:

"From the tenor of your letter I would assume that you do not regard Communism and Nazism as subversive, and by the same token you would have America throw open the gates to a Fifth Column of destruction which has led to the downfall of Christian Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France since you would resist the efforts of the FBI from even ascertaining the identity of those whose allegiance is apparently pledged to some dictatorship."

Congress Backs 2 Jobs for Jones

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP) Congress today approved Jesse H. Jones' retaining his post as federal loan administrator while serving as secretary of commerce. The senate unanimously approved legislation enabling the former Texas banker to hold both jobs shortly after the house had passed the measure. The legislation exempted Jones from federal laws prohibiting one man from holding two government posts.

Traffic Signs in State Are To Be Renovated

Assistant division engineers in charge of maintenance from the seven state highway districts and their sign foremen met here yesterday and completed plans for a campaign to renovate all traffic signs in the state.

The campaign is being sponsored by the State Highway Department's division of traffic and safety, which has declared the week of September 16 to 21 as "Clean Up, Paint Up and Straighten Up" week. M. C. Bishop, division director, outlined the campaign yesterday and pointed out that all needless signs and traffic lights will be eliminated.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 11, 1940.

Duty of Patriots

Today, at polling places in each precinct of each county, Georgia's voters will select the men who are to direct the government of the state for the next two years.

Approximately 540,000 have registered and are qualified to vote. More important, even, than the outcome of the various races, is the need for every one of those voters to cast a ballot. For the citizen who, able and qualified to vote, does not do so is failing in the most vital contribution, as an individual, he can make to democratic government. The vote slacker is, only in different degree, parallel case with the soldier who shirks his duty in the face of the foe.

Regardless of who of the three candidates is elected governor, irrespective of what men fill the important posts in the state governmental system for the coming two years, the election will have been successful if it demonstrates that Georgians are at last awake to their responsibilities and their duties, that they march to the polls with but few, if any, deserters missing from the ranks.

There is substantial reason to doubt the patriotism of the man or woman who, qualified to vote, yet fails to cast a ballot. At least, there is excellent ground for impugning the understanding of democracy and of America, by such an individual.

When the final count is completed and the results are all known, it is sincerely to be hoped that those among the candidates who will best serve Georgia, have been elected. But, more important to you as an individual, is the question as to whether your vote was, or was not, in the ballot box.

Amenity of war, caught on the British radio. "If you see an airplane flying backward, it's an Italian pursuit plane."

By 1945

The United States Navy Department this week placed orders for 201 ships of war, at a total cost of $3,861,053,312. Which means that, when these ships are built, the United States Navy will be the greatest in the world, with a total of 688 vessels. Then we shall have a two-ocean navy, ready to protect our Atlantic and Pacific coasts alike.

That, however, will be by 1945 or 1946. It will take so long to build the vessels ordered this week.

In the meantime, we are depending upon the British navy to keep the world menace of totalitarianism away from our Atlantic coasts, so that our present navy, only large enough for use in one ocean, may remain across the Pacific, a symbol of our might in the troubled and troublesome East.

In the meantime, we must build, with all our energy and speed, thousands of airplanes to help the British fleet and the British people to hold the last fortress of freedom in Europe, Britain. We must build many more thousands of planes to make our own defense in the sky impregnable.

In the meantime we must equip and train an army—more than an army, a nation's manhood—so we can resist any possible aggression by land, from north or south, east or west.

The nation will breathe easier in 1945 when that great new navy is complete. But the immediate problem is 1940 and 1941. Can Britain hold? What can we do to stiffen her arm? What can we do to make ourselves so strong, quickly, that no foe will dream a challenge to our might?

No more will our geniuses be lost to fame. Washington now puts them on postage stamps, and people say, "Who?"

Among late developments in the twin spheres of geography and government is the sad case of Rumania, now small enough to be ruled by a boy.

Never is the experienced statesman so crass as to admit a yearning to remain on the public pay roll. He points to "the great, unfinished task."

In the south, a chair dropped from a balcony felled a spectator who was booing two wrestlers impartially. The fate of the neutral seems about the same everywhere.

Emotional Error

Superintendent of City Schools Willis A. Sutton is quoted as stating that Atlanta school children this year will be asked to give 10 per cent of their school savings to, "if possible," help feed the starving peoples of Europe.

Superintendent Sutton is then said to have stated that a recent letter from a friend in Poland informed him that "millions of Poles had starved to death since the German invasion," and, further, that another letter from Austria said that $20 would feed an Austrian for a year.

The purpose of such statements in letters from Poland, Austria or any other locale in German-occupied Europe should be self-evident. It must be remembered that no letters come through from these territories that the Nazis do not wish to come through. Censorship sees to that. When letters containing statements such as those quoted are received in this country, there is one definite purpose behind them. That is to try and induce emotional Americans to help the German cause by assisting in breaking through the British blockade.

Undoubtedly there is a lack of food in Europe and that lack will inevitably be more serious through the winter months to come. The Nazis have already drained the territories of the countries they have seized of all available food supplies. Those captive nations are filled with hungry peoples, but the people of Germany proper are well fed.

Within recent weeks the German radio attempted to explain a shortage of butter in Denmark by saying "unscrupulous dealers" had bought up all supplies before they reached the market. And, on the same day, the Berlin radio bragged that the butter ration in Germany had been doubled!

To say that "millions" of Poles have starved to death is undoubtedly gross exaggeration. Some may have and more, in all probability, will. But the responsibility for starvation in Poland, or in any other conquered country, is the responsibility of Germany.

And, when it comes to seeking sympathy for Austria—that is only one step removed from an outright request that people of this country bring pressure on Britain to entirely lift the blockade, one of the most effective weapons in Britain's armory.

Everyone knows that every ounce of food sent anywhere into German occupied territory will find its way, directly or indirectly, to Germany herself. The Nazis are not going to leave more than starvation rations in the occupied countries. They want all the rest for themselves. If we should send 100 tons of butter, for instance, into Denmark, that would simply mean the Nazis would take an additional 100 tons of Danish butter into Germany.

No, if it is thought advisable to inculcate a spirit of sacrifice among our own children, by asking for 10 per cent of their school savings, let the money be used to buy first-grade milk for the less fortunate children of Georgia. It will serve a far better purpose.

Let us not urge our own children to help the cause of that monstrous force that is Nazidom, a force which threatens the liberty and the security of those children, and the children of generations of Americans yet unborn.

The time means to pick a livelier successor to the steady shag, etc. A thought is to set the Hitler jitters to music.

Russian field marshals are to receive jeweled stars bearing one three-karat and 25 smaller diamonds. That oughta make those rich capitalist nations envious, eh, comrade?

Editorial of the Day

IS THIS WILKIE JUST A GHOST?

(From The Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Some of Wilkie's friends are beginning to raise the question whether the man really exists, whether he is a flesh-and-blood reality or a legend. They do not ask this in a carping spirit; but they feel it would be a pity if the Republicans at Philadelphia had hurriedly nominated a ghost.

The magazine Time was one of the leading forces in the pre-convention build-up for Mr. Wilkie; this week Time sadly reports that more and more Republicans are feeling that "maybe Wilkie was only a fatter, louder Alf Landon."

Where is the strong-willed, positive man of affairs that we were told about before Philadelphia? Where is the man who knows his own mind, and who was expected to seize the imagination of the country by speaking bluntly, by scolding equivocators? This paper is not yet convinced that Mr. Wilkie, as he was described to us in the past, does not exist. For the good of America we hope sincerely that he does exist. So far, however, we must admit that the evidence is in favor of the ghost theory.

During the past week Mr. Wilkie has approved the results of the destroyer deal, and has attacked that deal as "the most arbitrary and dictatorial action ever taken by a President." He has attacked the Overton-Russell amendment without qualification, and he has later qualified his own attack by saying he would approve a draft of industry so long as too much power is not given to the President.

The result is the usual political hodge-podge. No one knows today exactly where Wilkie stands, either on the destroyer deal, or on the plan to draft industry, or on almost anything else. All they know at the moment is that another candidate is bubbling his way through another campaign. The "crusade" is degenerating into the old pathetic effort to please everybody.

On the other side must be set Mr. Wilkie's generous and uncompromising repudiation of the Coughlin vote. Which is the real Wilkie? The forthright fighter might win the election. The ghost can only go down to a Landon-like defeat. The Wilkie of the Philadelphia story might help to make American opinion clear and bold in a desperate moment. The ghost can only help to weaken and confuse us in the face of our common enemy.

Both for his own sake and for the country's we pray that Mr. Wilkie is real. But the time is at hand when we have a right to ask for the evidence.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

PRESIDENTIAL CHANGE OF MOOD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The President's enemies regard his parade of lack of interest in the campaign as annoyingly smart politics. A good many of his friends, however, are driven almost to distraction by it. New Dealish administration chieftains are frenzied by his refusal to reorganize the Democratic national committee, which is running along at half speed, still cluttered with the leftovers of the Farley regime. A number of the more rigid-minded party leaders would like to see him make more speeches. And the day hardly passes without the arrival of a delegation of local politicians to plead with him to help them in their bailiwicks.

Among these people harrying the President to do this or that about the campaign, an astonishing number have received a stock answer. He tells them, quite simply, that the country ought to know everything knowable by now about his policies, abilities, personality and character. He asserts that nothing he can say will change the opinions of effective numbers of voters. And he brushes off his would-be advisers with a cheerful refusal to worry about the outcome of the election.

In short, the President's changed system of handling his campaign implies not only a changed system of managing the government; it also implies a changed presidential mood. Fatalism, which plays quite as large a part as self-confidence in the President's approach to campaign problems, is as novel a phenomenon at the White House as the absence of aides and amanuenses of the brain-trust type.

UNPOPULAR ACT This self-confident fatalism is in remarkable contrast to the timidity and uncertainty afflicting the President in the months before the Chicago convention. Then he was willing to compromise with the isolationists, allowed the senate to bully him out of chosen courses, and hardly wished even to present adequate defense requests. Now he is ready for such bold strokes as the destroyer bases deal, or for such firm statements as his demand for prompt passage of the draft bill.

As has been suggested in this column before, part of the President's previous uncertainty should be laid to his bewilderment at finding the central assumption of his foreign policy suddenly proved groundless by the battle of France. Nothing except a sudden confrontation with the unexpected could have produced such a speech as the famous "on hand and on order" fireside chat, with its unhappy peevishness, and its rather flimsy efforts at self-exercise. But there is an additional explanation of the change in the President, vouched for by a leading member of the administration, and also extremely persuasive.

It is, quite simply, that before the Chicago convention he was extremely determined to do, or seriously considering doing, an extremely unpopular thing—namely, breaking the precedent against a third term. Unlike the New Dealers, he has always regarded the antithird-term tradition as strong among the rank and file of people. He has always hated to do things distasteful to large numbers of the voters. He is a man who likes to be liked, who is still wounded even by the hatred of the very "economy royalists" he has most loudly attacked. Thus, before taking the plunge, he was in a wavering mood.

NO MORE WAVERING It is difficult to find much wavering in his mood today. He has every detail of his campaign already planned—what short trips he will take to dramatize his preoccupation with national defense, what addresses he will make when the time comes for the few he has decided on, and which issues he will stress. On topics separate from the campaign, he holds his views with determination. The destroyer-air bases deal is likely to be only the first of several similar developments, all of them to the isolationist group, but all in line with his own ideas.

Furthermore, there is even a perceptible physical difference in the President. Shortly before the convention, while talking to Colonel Frank Knox about the navy secretaryship, he remarked that he did not think he could stand another four years in the White House. He was obviously tired and obviously dispirited. Now, on the contrary, his spirits seem to be excellent, and far from doubting his ability to stand another four years in his job, he shows an appetite for work which is almost without precedent. Besides supervising the defense program in the closest detail, he is currently acting as co-secretary of state with Cordell Hull, co-secretary of war with Henry Stimson, and co-secretary of the navy with Colonel Knox.

The magnificent power of resistance shown by the British, and the decline in the strength of Wendell L. Wilkie, are other factors which might be added to the list of influences changing the President's mood. The real point is, however, that his mood has changed, and changed immensely for the better.

Letters

From England.

Just as I was wondering what to make the subject of this column for today the mail came in, with letters from England. And, with so vast a majority of us all thinking and suffering, these days, with Britain, I decided nothing could be of greater interest than extracts from a few of these letters.

Remember, however, they were written before the Nazis launched their present "all out" air war against London. The latest date on any of the batch is August 15.

"We all keep in good condition are kept very busy these days," writes that one.

Another writes from Leeds: "I know I have been a long time in answering your letter but I seem to get so little time for writing, and even when I do start, something seems to crop up to stop."

"Anyhow, Eva, I suppose you want to know just how things are here. Well, to be quite candid, they are not too good, but we are certainly not worrying. We know that we are going to have a hell of a fight but we are ready for it, and, in fact, I think I will welcome it. We are now on our own, every one of our Allies (?) has thrown in the sponge and now it depends on England, and I can tell you Eva that we are going to win. We aren't lose, otherwise everything worth while will be lost—and what is worth while is lost—writing this air raid."

"As I'm writing this air raid are taking place on the East Coast and our wireless has just announced that in one coastal town in Scotland a high explosive bomb has demolished three houses, killed six people and wounded fifteen others and yet everything is going on normally. We are not scared, Eva, we are just waiting for the time for action and then we hope to show Hitler that he's gone the limit—and for us, the sky is the limit and we have faith in our air force. And, by the way, on Saturday I enrolled for the R. A. F. but as Dad was never naturalized, I am classed as a foreigner and my papers have to go to London for verification, but the recruiting officer said he thought it would be O. K. and I could expect to hear from him shortly."

From a Woman

Of Sixty-Five.

The next letter was written by a woman of 65, in reply to an urgent invitation from a friend in Atlanta, that she and her family come for the duration.

"... Darling: 'Come the four corners of the world in arms and we shall shock them!'

Naught shall make us run, if England to herself remain but true."

"And how can England be true to herself if her children run like rabbits and give way to panic? I know your anxiety is all for love and I know things sound worse from far away than they do from near by, but do believe me that far from starving England is simply groaning with food! Far from those few things that are rationed being too little. Effie and I never can gobble up our ration with the week, and we are living like fighting cocks, and prices are not (an extra halfpenny on the omnibus, an extra penny here and there on a luxury).

"There are deaths from air raids, it is true, but nothing distantly approaching the number of road casualties in peacetime. 'We are gorgeously protected, spirits are high and courage is not failing. Please do not fear for us. Our faith in God is unshaken right through the nation, our faith and love for our dear King makes any idea of changing him unthinkable, and as for the possibility of losing the war, we regard it with the same skepticism as we do a collision between the planets."

"Effie is well and so are all hers. Please, please do not fret for us; we are as right as rain, and as safe as God and our own good cause can make us. Pray for us, dear, but do not fret for us. 'Ever your devoted,'"

An Irishman

Writes:

"You know that in my soul I am Irish, finding in myself all sorts of instincts and prejudices which differentiate me from my English friends. But just now my admiration for England is past idolatry. I am drunk with it. To be anywhere in England now is to feel that she is unconquerable..."

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, September 11, 1915:

"Washington, September 10.—Official Washington views the friendly relations with the German powers as strained more toward the breaking point than ever before."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, September 11, 1890:

"The other day a young lady in Brooklyn burned herself to death with a cigarette. It is a pity that male cigarette smokers do not wear costumes capable of producing similar results."

Three Men Save Girl

It required three men to save Miss Anna Peterson from the wheels of a departing passenger train at the station in Panama City, just like in the movies. The girl ran to board the front steps of the last coach and fell across the rails. Policeman LaPong dashed to her aid and was thrown by the train. Station Agent Raines ran and pulled the girl from the track just in time. Conductor S. White of a nearby passenger executed a flying leap to the train and stopped it.

All In

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. You may not believe the following, but it is all in the book entitled "Constitution, by-laws and standing resolutions of the American Federation of Musicians" which was readily given me last week by Jimmy Petrillo, the director of American music, who probably will be willing to mail you a copy, too, although he doubtless would want you to send in about a dime for postage, printing and mailing if this piece should create a heavy demand for the document. This book is my nomination for the title of horrible example of the outrageous tyranny of labor with capital L over the rank and file workers.

The portion which you have to read over and then backward and sideways before you can believe your eyes is contained in the first article of the by-laws, where it is written that the president, Mr. Petrillo, is empowered to "annul and set aside" the constitution, by-laws, resolutions or rules and "substitute therefor of his own making" with one exception. In drawing the by-laws the boys apparently didn't trust their president to keep hands off the treasury, so this dictatorial power does not apply to those portions of the governing writ which "treat with the finances of the organization."

Otherwise, however, the power of the president is absolute, and if you think I am exaggerating you look a little further down on Page 1 and you will find that it says "The power so to do is hereby made absolute in the president when, in his opinion, such orders are necessary" and shall permit him to make up new laws out of his head when the existing laws are inadequate. That is the very word, "absolute."

Champion

Of All

I have studied quite a sizable library of union constitutions in the past year, smarting myself up on a system of government which bullies and dazes millions of American working stiff, but this one is the champion of all that I have read to date and probably is the champion of the world.

I can't see how a constitution could be worse, because it says right there that the president of the union shall be a dictator, and no two ways about it. He can dispense with the national conventions which the officers are supposed to come up for re-election, extend his own terms to the end of his days, heave out anyone who offers him any lip, censor music and blacklist, and thus silence any instrumental artist or orchestra that he doesn't like, or ruin any radio chain or station which commits an offense against his political prejudices by granting time on the air to any candidate or proposition that he disapproves.

Jimmy Petrillo was elected president only recently, and he now gets $49,000 a year, plus traveling expenses and a car and a chauffeur, with the right to turn in the old car and get a new one at the member's expense whenever he wants a new one. He doesn't ride in jalopies, either. He kept his old job as president, at $26,000 a year, of the local in Chicago, where he is also a high roller in the Ed Kelly machine. The new office of national president pays $20,000, plus a "contingent" expense account of $3,000, for the spending of which he shall not be required to make an accounting. His traveling expenses are extra. The $3,000 is gravy.

Further

Wordage

Further along the same article (1) permits Jimmy to remove any officer of any local whom he finds guilty of neglect, interference or violation, but, of course, that is mere wordage, because that power already exists in the authority to repeal and pass legislation at will.

In calling Jimmy a dictator I am not original. He calls himself a dictator, always mindful of the best interests of his subjects—which is just what Adolf Hitler says.

In justice to Jimmy I will say that he tells me this dictatorial power has never been exercised, but in fairness to the facts I will point out that last winter, even before he was president of the national union, he censored the scripts of two plays in Chicago, and that, just as a matter of routine, he enforced or suspends, according to his personal decision, the rules which forbid high school bands and the like to perform in public in actual or theoretical competition with professionals.

This union takes in about $3,000,000 cash a year, and you can hear a peep out of the members. Jimmy says the reason why they never squawk is to be found in their hearts. I will say it is. Not many men have the heart to challenge a boss unioner with Jimmy Petrillo's powers.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

WHISPERING CAMPAIGN A new technique, or rather an old technique employed with new high-pressure methods, is the whispering campaign in elections. Georgia today will nominate its next governor. The nomination means election.

One of the whispers going about the state is that Eugene Talmadge, if nominated, will bolt the ticket and come out for Wendell Wilkie, the Republican nominee. Mr. Talmadge's past record has encouraged some of the Wilkie people to believe this may be true.

It is my guess, backed by no word from the man in question, that, if he is nominated, he not only will come out for the Democratic ticket but will come out for it in an emphatic manner.

The three candidates are candidates in a Democratic primary. They each are pledged to abide by the result and to support the nominee. This actually binds them to support all nominees of the party.

During the campaign Abit Nix and Columbus Roberts each have had as one of their platform planks a 100 per cent endorsement of Mr. Roosevelt. Eugene Talmadge has contented himself with saying he is a party man.

Once the primary is over, the national committee, Edward Flynn, ought to call on the nominee from Georgia to make some talks for the national ticket. This is an important state. It always has been a Democratic state. One may hope it always will be, not because of tradition, but because the Democratic party is the party which comes nearest, despite its mistakes, being the real party of the people. The nominee from this Democratic state ought to be asked to make some talks for the ticket in the farm belt of the west.

I think the nominee from Georgia, be it Talmadge, Roberts or Nix, is loyal enough to make those speeches. They are all Democrats. The fact Talmadge has differed with the party leaders does not mean he is disloyal to the party. He has kept it within the party. If the party calls on him for help, my idea is he will give it. He is a Democrat.

ROOSEVELT BUTTON

A man from a small town told me this story. It happened in a country town in Tennessee. It is a story of campaign buttons.

He said that a young boy of 15 went from Nashville to visit a farm on the outskirts of the small country town. The boy from Nashville was the son of a "Wilkie Democrat." He wore a Wilkie button. During the first afternoon of his arrival he was talking of his button to his cousin, the son of the farmer. This cousin was older, being 21 and ready to cast his first vote. "Let me show you my Roosevelt button," he said. "They walked to the house. The farm boy stepped in the door. He pushed a button on the wall. The house was flooded with light."

"There," he said, "is my Roosevelt button." The story is, of course, a campaign story. Yet it is essentially a true story. It is not fair to damn all the utility companies. The Georgia company had an excellent record for supplying electricity to rural communities. And private companies could not spend the money of their stockholders to supply the sparsely settled farm lands with electricity.

The important fact is that this Roosevelt administration was the very first one in all our history to do something to help the farmer. All the mistakes may be deducted from the farm record and the helpful things, led by electricity, far outweigh the mistakes.

BENEFITS FROM INVESTMENTS

The truth is, it will be some years yet before the nation will begin to benefit from many of the investments of the Roosevelt administration.

Soil erosion control is one of the finest things this administration has done. Already we are beginning to see the benefits of it.

The tree belt which was planted in the dust bowl area some years ago was laughed at as a fantastic and money-wasting plan. This year it has brought results. It has proved its worth.

In another ten years the soil erosion plan will greatly have improved the farm lands of the nation. During the hard rains of the past few weeks reports have come in from many sections that soil erosion work had kept the topsoil from washing into the rivers. The gulches were gone. They were not there, foaming with soil washing from the fields.

Reforestation is another investment which has not yet begun to pay dividends. Conservation of natural resources is another investment not yet paying returns.

Electrification of farms is another investment not yet paying dividends. The worst feature of the Roosevelt administration has been the arrogance and the dictatorial attitudes and decisions of some of the boards created by his administration.

It may be expected this condition will be improved. Meanwhile at least 80 per cent of the Roosevelt measures have been those which even his opponents endorse.

The real Roosevelt buttons are those of celluloid, but those of accomplishment and service to the nation and the people. All the people.

Horse-and-Buggy Minds Can Find No Security In a Fast-Truck World

By ROBERT QUILEN.

The free world we know is desperately fighting for its life—and may be doomed before this appears in print—solely because the old men who ruled England would not believe their empire endangered and would not build an air force.

Free civilization brought to the brink of ruin by stubborn ignorance and perverse blindness!

Yet today many of our trusted public servants and leaders, and millions of our people will not believe we are in danger and will not lend their support to the hurried building of an adequate air force.

Why? Do they mean we are not in danger because a Hitler triumph would not endanger us?

Though utterly ignorant of military matters, they say an invasion of America is impossible. Does that opinion make us safe? The tragic record of the past year shows the folly of such assertions. Every triumph Hitler has achieved was declared impossible—not by laymen alone, but by recognized military experts.

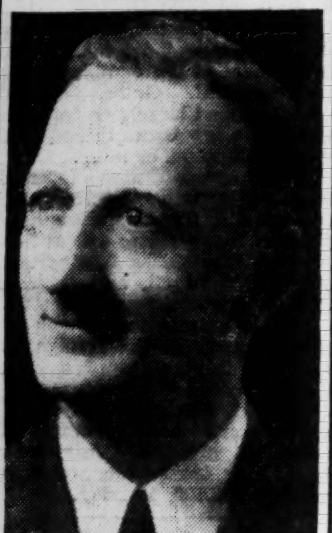

People ignorant of history say the Atlantic Ocean is a barrier that protects us. But has it ever, in all of history, kept an aggressor from reaching his adversary? You

CHOICE of the PEOPLE

Dudley Glass

Thinks Public Knows Nothing About Some Things.

Among the numerous things I don't like about our political system is the election of certain officials "by the people."

I realize that's undemocratic and maybe I'm wrong. But I hate to see a man who would like to be a justice of the supreme court or the court of appeals or our own local superior court go out and appeal to the voters to put him—or keep him—in office. It looks cheap for an aspirant to the judiciary. And I'm not thinking of anybody in particular, because I hardly know who is running.

I was brought up to consider a judge—except the one-horse justice of the peace of my boyhood region—as the law and the gospel. Like Caesar's wife, beyond a breath of criticism. And after they get into office they are just that. Say something—and you're in contempt of court.

I have not an overwhelming respect for the intelligence, integrity and morals of governors, taking them as they come. We've had 'em and we've had 'em bad. We've had them honest and inefficient, because they couldn't deal with legislatures, and we've had 'em who seemed to wax fat upon their salary, despite campaign expenses. But—and this is my purely personal opinion—I'd rather see judges appointed by the chief executive.

Why? Because neither you nor I nor your neighbors have the slightest idea about who would make a good judge—of the high, middle or low court. How could we? We've got to scramble out a living and we don't know whether the candidate for the high, supreme, ultimate ruling on a case involving the Consolidated Railways, Electric, Gas and Interstate Omnibus Corporation knows the difference between torts and mortmain. I don't know either what those words mean—and I don't

American Confidence in Victory Good For Britain Again on Increase Morning

Per Cent Still Far Below Figure for Year Ago; Little Faith Put in Plane Losses Reported by Either Belligerent.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 10.—As England beats off air raid after air raid, American public confidence in a British victory has revived considerably in recent weeks. But it is far below the confidence which prevailed at the outbreak of the war. A series of nation-wide polls conducted by the Institute during the past year shows that whereas an overwhelming number of American voters thought 12 months ago that Britain would win the war, considerably less than a majority think so today.

The poll put to a cross-section of voters in all states the question: "Which side do you think will win the war?"

The results follow:

	England	Germany	Undecided
Sept., 1939 (When War Began)	82%	11%	7%
May, 1940 (France Invaded)	55	33	12
June	32	33	35
July (After Fall of France)	32	35	33
Today	43	17	40

The public's vote on who will win the war is, of course, a layman's vote, for the common people have no military training which would give them special insight. Even military experts disagree as to the probable outcome of the war. How the people feel about its progress may be important, however, as a guide to attitudes on war issues in general.

In a companion survey the Institute attempted to measure the public's reaction toward conflicting British and German claims on losses of warplanes.

It found that the majority of voters do not place much stock in the statement of either side, but tend to place more faith in British reports.

Two questions were asked, one on British claims and one on German claims.

"Recently the English claimed that they shot down 387 German planes in one week and lost only 94 of their own. Do you think this report is accurate?"

	Yes	No	Don't know
Yes	19%	58	23
No	19%	58	23
Don't know	3%	86	11

Handshakers. A good spellbinder and handshaker may—or may not—make a good governor.

We can hear him announce his principles and believe him or not. But a judge—or a solicitor general—isn't supposed to have any principles, or policies, which is the better word. He is supposed to know the law and how to use it.

The law is the law and that's that. How the devil can Bill Simmons, of Widespot; or Tom Jenkins, of Skinshanks; or Dudley Glass, of the Buckhead district of Fulton county, know the comparative qualifications of candidates for justices of the high justice, the middle or the low, as they used to express it in medieval times?

As to the judiciary, I'm rather in favor of going back to appointments by the governor.

For the reason that the governor is a candidate either for reelection or for the United States senate or something or another.

He may be a crooked governor, but he has an eye on the future. He hates to have it brought up against him that he appointed a crooked judge—or an ignorant judge. If he has half sense he asks that an aspirant get the endorsement of the lawyers in his circuit or barlick.

Well, there are all kinds of lawyers. Big, medium and little. They work all the tricks they can. Sometimes they are on one side of a case and sometimes on the other. Like players in a baseball league, they prefer an honest umpire. They have enough to do in fighting their opponents. They don't want to have to fight the judge.

In choosing a judge I'll take the opinion of the bar—which usually is overwhelmingly for one candidate—just as I'd take the opinion of a couple of doctors about my stomach complaint. I wouldn't ask the elevator man or the street car motorman about my stomach. He'd know just about as much about it as I—and you—know about the qualifications of a candidate for the judiciary.

'Honorable—'

It will be another couple of years before letters come to me addressed "Hon. Dudley Glass." I'm rather sorry, because the prefix makes me feel I'm somebody and because when I see "Hon." on an envelope I don't have to open it. The wastepaper basket is at my right hand.

"Hon." seems to have gone into the discard, along with "Esq." It is a relic adhered to only by candidates. My time isn't as valuable as Mr. Henry Ford's, but I welcome the identifying mark because I can toss away the letters and read Westbrook Pegler instead.

Sometimes, bereft of other literature, I read letters from candidates or their clubs or friends or supporters. They're really exilirating.

I am informed that I am an outstanding citizen of immense influence in my community. I am urged to use that influence in behalf of the writer. I am almost convinced that at last my importance is being recognized—until certain earmarks prove the letter was multigraphed and my name and address filled in. The type and ribbons just don't match up.

I know I am an outstanding citizen of super-intelligence, high social standing and vast influence upon the denizens of a wide

New Term Opens At Gordon College

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10. Formal opening exercises were held at Gordon Military College here today, with the president, Colonel J. E. Guillebeau, presiding.

Boards from 25 states and four foreign counties were present, and sons of 10 former students of Gordon.

Members of the board of trustees were introduced and a moment of silent prayer was observed in tribute to the memory of W. B. Smith, former chairman, who died this summer.

Merrill Sappington and Dick Smith, graduates of last year, were introduced as midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Septic Tank Rules Made More Strict

Use of septic tanks by apartment houses outside the city, where sewers are available, was permanently prohibited yesterday by the Fulton County Board of Health.

The board adopted a rule not to give permits for septic tanks for the apartments and not to allow more than one house to use the same septic tank in the future.

The rule affecting apartments was designed only to cover new buildings in areas where sewer lines can be available. County health engineers recommended the stricter rules because of increasing building in the county.

VOTE FOR T. GRADY HEAD

Candidate for Associate Justice Supreme Court of Georgia

The people of Georgia are confronted with an excellent opportunity to place upon the bench of the Supreme Court of this state a man who has all of the qualifications which should be possessed by an occupant of this extremely important position. In training, experience, ability and integrity, the Hon. T. Grady Head measures up to all the requirements of a justice of the State's highest court, and his election at the September 11 primary will assure the people of another occupant of the bench who will maintain in the highest degree its traditional honor and dignity.

Garden Writer To Edit Guide For Magazine

W. Elbridge Freeborn To Appear in 'Better Homes and Gardens.'

W. Elbridge Freeborn, for 11 years The Constitution's garden columnist, enters the national field with the October issue of the magazine, "Better Homes and Gardens," which will be circulated Monday.

Mr. Freeborn, executive of an Atlanta seed store of nation-wide scope, becomes the editor of a monthly outdoor gardening guide devoted to the south. He will continue his other writing and commercial activities.

Indicative of his skill with words, besides his knowledge of the technical phases of gardening, is this one-paragraph description of early autumn in the south:

"October is a happy time in the south. The roads are filled with wagons of cotton headed for the gin. Cane is being ground. It's harvest time again. There's a promise of winter in the air. If you'll ride a dusty road you can smell the smoke of wood fires burning."

A graduate of Emory, Mr. Freeborn is self-educated in respect to gardening.

"I never had an agricultural course in my life," he said yesterday. "I've always had a natural interest in gardening and the open."

Cane Growers To Meet In Cairo September 17

CAIRO, Ga., Sept. 10.—(P)—The Cane Growers' Co-operative Association, one of the state's oldest co-op marketing services, will meet here September 17.

The date was changed from today because of the state-wide primary tomorrow. The cane association has members in several counties. It maintains offices and a warehouse here, operating a canning plant as part of its services.

Extensive Improvement Is Reported at G.S.C.W.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10.—Many improvements have been made on the physical plant at Georgia State College for Women this summer.

A new tearoom, soda fountain and post office have been constructed in the physical education building; several new apartments for faculty members have been completed in Beeson Hall; additions have been made on Sanford Hall, and the former tearoom in Bell annex has been converted into a recreation room for students of that dormitory.

Faculty members will meet for the first time September 19, when freshmen will begin arriving on the campus for orientation week. Classes are slated to begin Thursday, September 26, after upper-classmen complete registration on Wednesday and Thursday morning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—

Buyers boosted a selected group of rail bonds today, but allowed industrial and foreign bonds to slip.

Interest in the carrier group was given a fillip by final congressional approval of the omnibus transportation bill. Gains, however, were confined largely to fractions, although a few issues tacked on as much as 2 points or more.

Higher were Illinois Central 4 1/2 at 41 1/2, Erie 5 of 75 at 13 1/2, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4 1/2 at 51 1/2, Nickel Plate 4 1/2 at 56 1/2, New Orleans Texas & Mexico 5 of 75 at 33 1/2, Pacific collateral 5 of 77 at 16 1/2, British Empire issues took the worst licking in the foreign list, although faint signs of a comeback appeared in late trade.

Gains of 5-32 point among U. S. governments were balanced by losses of as much. Turnover of $4,161,000, face value, compared with $4,008,100 Monday.

FREAK TREE UPROOTED.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP) Savannahians want someone to come to the rescue of a freak of nature—a tree half oak and half cedar out beyond the municipal airport. It was uprooted by the hurricane, and must be replaced soon if it is to have a chance to live. Already Chamber of Commerce officials have been approached on the subject of resetting the tree.

Two-Day Respite
From Heat Seen

Cool weather for the next two days was forecast for Atlanta last night by the United States Weather Bureau.

In a four-day forecast the bureau announced that temperature considerably below normal would prevail in north Georgia until Friday when a return to warm September readings is expected. Skies will be generally fair during the period.

The brief respite from summer heat is caused by a mass of cool air that drifted in from the west yesterday afternoon and sent the thermometer at the downtown weather bureau from 86 at 3 o'clock to 79 at 4 o'clock. Today the bureau reported, will be cloudy and cool with temperature ranging between 66 and 80 degrees. Yesterday's high was 86 and the low 72.

Everything is affected by the heat wave except the want ad RESULTS in The Constitution.

Facts Listed
About Today's
State Primary

Fulton County Polls Will Be Open for 12 Hours.

Pertinent facts concerning today's Democratic primary:

1. There are 540,000 men and women registered to vote in the 159 counties, and a record number of ballots could be cast by the time city precincts close their voting booths at 7 o'clock tonight.
2. Voting time in the rural precincts is from 7 o'clock in the morning to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and in township and city precincts from 7 o'clock in the morning to 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening.
3. The polls in Fulton county will be open from 7 o'clock to 7 o'clock.
4. There are 24 candidates for the eight state offices open for nomination, with chief interest centered in the three-man Governor's race.
5. To be nominated governor, a candidate must poll at least 206 county unit votes, or a majority of the 410 county unit votes. Other statehouse officers are elected on a plurality basis.
6. There are eight counties with six unit votes, 30 with four unit votes, and 121 with two unit votes.

BURGLAR, NOT DOG.
AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP) Elizabeth Hughes, Negro, told police she reached out from her bed to pat her dog and touched a human being. She screamed and the intruder, who had been crouched by her bed, fled.

Silhouette for 1941

Buick Special 6-passenger 4-door Sedan, $1052 delivered at Flint, Mich. Wheel shields and white sidewall tires, extra.*

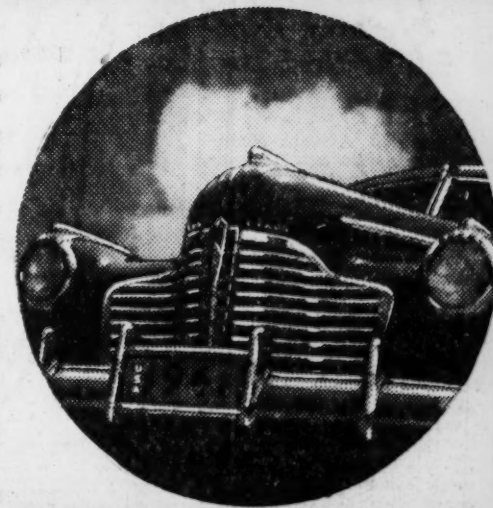

AS surely as the new Buick FIREBALL* straight-eight engine sets the performance pace for the coming season, the graceful silhouette of the new Buick SPECIAL and CENTURY cuts the automotive style pattern for another half decade.

The reason is not alone the grace of its Buick-created lines, nor the appearance of solid substance in action that gives this honey the look of a speedster straining at its leash.

*According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, a super motor which travels with a series of explosions like the shock waves of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."

It is the practical quality of great room enclosed in sleek and flowing lines—more room for legs, for elbows, for heads, more room for entrance and more room for carrying luggage—that makes this the silhouette the cars of the future will seek to achieve.

Why wait for that—when in this Buick you travel in a car that, like time and tide, obviously isn't waiting for any man?

More Leaders Urge Traffic Modernization

Elimination of 'Snarls' Is Termed Atlanta's Greatest Need.

By WILLARD COPE.

A modern traffic plan, suited to the city's size, is Atlanta's greatest need.

This assertion, voiced frequently in recent weeks, was echoed again yesterday by important figures in neighborhood civic organizations.

"In my judgment a solution of our traffic dilemma should come ahead of any other accomplishment," declared George L. Wilson, president of the West End Businessmen's Association. "The WPA engineering survey should be completed. It is vitally needed, and everyone should work to that end."

"Without doubt a major operation is necessary to cure our traffic-produced illness. All of us will have to make some sacrifices in the general interest."

Traffic Snarls Cited.

"We must act in a courageous way, foregoing immediate neighborhood advantages to take care of a vital community need. We must see to it that the task is undertaken at once and likewise see to it that it is done."

"Out on Cascade avenue where I operate we have no especial traffic problem, but I am completely disgusted every time I find it necessary to go into the city. The traffic snarls you encounter everywhere are almost unbelievable in a modern city."

"If we will face the facts frankly we will see that we are away behind other cities of our class. Birmingham, Knoxville, Nashville, Memphis, Louisville—they have all long since gone in for super-highways and other necessary facilities while we have just continued to paddle along."

"Even Chattanooga, which we consider a much smaller place than Atlanta, is far out in front of us in this respect. I am not reading a burial service over Atlanta by any means, but I do wish our people could be made mad enough to insist on action."

Urges One-Way Streets.

"First and foremost, of course, we need an out-and-out, thoroughly integrated master traffic plan for the metropolitan area. Everything must give way before it."

"As details I would suggest one-way streets, north and south, paralleling Peachtree, and I would suggest ways of making our traffic police more effective."

"New streets must be opened and existing ones widened and lengthened."

"The important thing is a genuine plan, and the determination to put it into effect."

SAE Chapter Ready To Build $30,000 Home

Ground Breaking Exercises Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon.

More than 450 Atlanta members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, national college social fraternity, have been invited to ground breaking exercises at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when construction on a new $30,000 Georgia Tech chapter house officially begins.

The fraternity house, which will lodge 2 members, is located on Brittain drive and will be completed by January 1. Its construction has been financed by alumni contributions and a loan from the national council of the fraternity.

The exercises tomorrow will be directed by prominent Atlanta alumni, including Robert F. Maddox Jr., Robert Jones Sr. and Baxter Maddox. National officers of the organization will be present.

Officers of the local chapter are Robert Thompson, of Clearwater, Fla., president; Fred Murphey, of 737 Virginia circle, vice president; James Wilkins, of 4040 Brookhaven drive, secretary; and Bob Warnock, of Daytona Beach, treasurer.

N.A.P.S. To Hear Rev. Mr. Shields

Rev. Harold Shields, of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church, will be the principal speaker at the formal opening of the North Avenue Presbyterian School for Girls at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The worship service will be conducted by the high school, which has been in session for a week, with Miss Eleanor Kent, student president, presiding. Miss Thyra Askew, principal, will introduce members of the board, P.-T. A. president, and members of the faculty.

The party given by the sophomores for freshmen will be held at 2:30 o'clock Friday in the school gym, and class stunts will be presented at 6:30 o'clock the following Friday morning.

Cigaret Tobacco Exports Decline

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP)

Exports of flue-cured cigarette tobacco, grown chiefly in Georgia, the Carolinas, and Virginia, dropped about $10,000,000 in value in the first seven months of this year. The seven-month shipments of the bright leaf, totaling $25,682,778, compared with $34,614,796 in the same period last year and $44,533,731 in 1938, the Department of Commerce reported.

Exports of all United States tobacco products, manufactured and unmanufactured, hit a three-year low. They were valued at $32,446,627, a drop of $12,000,000 from 1939 and $24,000,000 from 1938, the report said.

Redfern Is Named To Liaison Office

Captain W. J. Redfern, of the State Defense Corps, has been named state liaison representative for the Georgia department, American Legion, according to State Commander Host C. Brown. Captain Redfern, who also holds a rank of sergeant in the State Patrol, is a member of the safety committee of the Georgia American Legion Department and was recently named acting adjutant of the State Defense Corps by Commander Ryburn G. Clay. The appointment of Captain Redfern by the American Legion requires that he co-operate with the Fourth Corps Area in matters of national defense.

Georgia Markets Sell Much Out-of-State Leaf

The State Department of Agriculture reported today that Georgia bright leaf auction centers sold 2,356,902 pounds of tobacco this season which was grown in other states.

Total Georgia-grown leaf sold was 76,889,374 pounds, which brought $11,992,897.35 for an average of 15.6 cents per pound. The out-of-state was composed of 71,000 pounds from Alabama, 2,152,050 from Florida, 790 from North Carolina, and 133,062 from South Carolina.

Miss Carter Weds James Humber Jr. At Emory Chapel

The Emory Theological chapel formed the setting last evening at 6 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Ninette Carter, daughter of Mrs. Henry Grady Carter, and James F. Humber Jr., of Clarksdale, Miss., son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Humber, of Clarksdale, Miss. Dr. Louis D. Newton performed the ceremony and a program of music was presented by Miss Dorothy Carter, organist, and Mrs. Joseph Lockwood, vocalist. The altar, centered with an exquisite floral arrangement of white and lavender gladioli, asters and dahlias, was banked with palms and ferns. Candelabra holding burning white tapers, interspersing the greenery, completed the lovely decorations. Ushers were Edward Gage Brewer, of Clarksdale, Miss.; Henry Carter, brother of the bride, and A. J. Singletary, of Blakeley. Carrying out the lavender and old lace motif selected by the bride for her wedding was the orchid lace gown by Miss Ruth Keeling, maid of honor. The dainty gown, which was posed over taffeta, featured a full flowing skirt and a tight fitting bodice designed with a gathered yoke at the neck and made with the off-the-shoulder effect extending into short puffed sleeves. She wore a tiara of lavender asters tied with velvet streamers that extended to the floor in back and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink and lavender roses, asters and gladioli. Mrs. Thomas R. Brown, of Stanford, Ky.; Miss Grace Elizabeth Collar and Miss Martha Humber, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of deep violet lace and pale lavender lace designed like that worn by the maid of honor and their head dresses and flowers were the same. The lovely bride entered with her grandfather, Sandy B. Carter, of Gainesville, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Rafe Banks Jr. Her exquisite gown of white chiffon and lace posed over matching taffeta was made with an off-the-shoulder neckline extending into a leg of mutton sleeves ending in points over the hands. The full flowing skirt of lace, designed with panels of chiffon and extended into a train in the back. She wore a veil of illusion belonging to Mrs. Thomas Brown and carried a prayer book, which had been given to her great-grandfather by his mother, showered with white orchids and swansons. Mrs. Carter, mother of the bride, was gowned in rose beige alpaca sheer with which she wore a matching hat and black accessories. A shoulder spray of purple orchids completed her ensemble. Mrs. Humber, mother of the groom, chose for her son's wedding a model of blue sheer wool trimmed with silver nailheads. She wore a matching hat and a shoulder bouquet of purple orchids. Mr. Humber and his bride left

Miss Zachry Becomes Bride Of Mr. Smith at Chapel Rites

The picturesque Emory theological chapel on the Emory University campus formed the setting yesterday morning for the marriage of Miss Virginia Fay Zachry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Linton Zachry, and George August Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis Smith. Dr. Nathaniel Long, pastor of Glenn Memorial church, officiated at 11:30 o'clock, in the presence of relatives, friends and out-of-town guests. As guests were assembling and during the ceremony a musical program was presented by Mrs. J. A. Wilson. The altar was banked with palms, ferns and other rich greenery, amid which were placed vases filled with Easter lilies. The pulpit and altar rail were garlanded with fern and Easter lilies. Seven urns on the altar were filled with lilies and on either side Italian urns held white flowers. Pews reserved for members of the families were marked with white satin ribbons and clusters of lilies. Groomsman and ushers were A. L. Zachry Jr., brother of the bride, Rayford Kyle, of Englewood, N. J.; Frampton Ellis, of Chicago, Ill., and William McConnell. Bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Johnson, Margaret Merts, Elizabeth Rauschenberg, of Dalton; Betty DuBoise, of Macon, and the maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Zachry, sister of the bride. Little Mary Law, of Clement, of Greensboro, N. C., was junior bridesmaid. All the attendants were gowned alike in becoming afternoon models of turquoise blue chiffon velvet fashioned with a shirred bodice and self-trimmed. They all wore off-the-face model hats of matching material and their accessories were of brown. The maid of honor carried a yellow chrysanthemum tied with matching ribbons, and the other attendants carried bronze chrysanthemum.

For a wedding trip, the destination was unannounced, at which they will reside in Clarksdale, Miss., where the groom is affiliated in business. Mrs. Humber chose for traveling an ensemble of taupe and French blue designed with a full length fitted coat of taupe with matching turban. Brown accessories and a shoulder spray of white orchids completed her costume. Among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mrs. L. M. Fuller, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Mann, of Cordele; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mann, of Macon; Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Raf Banks, Miss Mary Lydia Banks, Mrs. M. C. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Thweatt Robertson, all of Gainesville; Mrs. Winston Little, of Gainesville, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Pryor, of De Soto.

themums tied with ribbons to match. Entering with her father, Arthur L. Zachry, by whom she was given in marriage, the lovely bride met the groom and his brother, Hugh Smith, of Jacksonville, who was best man, at the altar. Her slender and graceful figure was offset by her afternoon dresses of Indian earth velvet made on becoming lines and trimmed in gold braid. The bodice featured a V neck and bracelet sleeves. The bride wore a small off-the-face hat of matching shade and trimmed with a chianti lace veil. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of white roses, white orchids and white swansons. Mrs. Zachry, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in a leaf-green ensemble, the coat being trimmed in matching braid. Her accessories were black and her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Smith, the groom's mother, was gowned in brown crepe with hat and accessories to match, and her flowers were talisman roses. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Zachry entertained at a wedding breakfast at their home on Springdale road for their daughter and Mr. Smith, the guests being limited to members of the wedding party, the two families and out-of-town guests. The table in the dining room was covered with an imported cut-work lace cloth and was centered with a bride's cake. Throughout the home quantities of chrysanthemums and gladioli were used for decorations. Mr. Smith and his bride left for a wedding trip to an unannounced destination, and afterward they will go to Cambridge, Mass., where they will reside. The bride traveled in a becoming three-piece grey suit trimmed in fox fur. Her hat was grey felt and her accessories were black. She wore a corsage of white orchids.

Vacant House Women Don Is Damaged by Overalls, Clean Blast of Bomb Roswell Road

A home-made bomb which police said was made with several sticks of dynamite tied together exploded early yesterday morning near a vacant house on Hillcrest drive, shattering windows in the building and awakening residents of the Candler Park section. The house is owned by E. L. Holcomb, an employee of the Atlanta Paper Company. Several months ago he moved to an adjoining residence. DeKalb county police expressed the opinion that the bomb was intended for Holcomb's home and was thrown by persons who did not know he had moved. Mrs. Bertha Robinson, a resident of that section, told police she saw two men get out of a parked automobile just before the explosion. Holcomb, awakened by the blast, said he saw an automobile pull away following the bombing. Little damage resulted to the vacant house. Yesterday two strikers at the Atlanta Paper Company plant were ordered jailed for contempt of court. Two others were acquitted and another, Mrs. Alley Chalmers, was given a 30-day suspended sentence for contempt of court. Judge Virlyn B. Moore, who issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting strikers from interfering with nonstriking employees at the plant, heard evidence that Fred McDonald and James Underwood had attacked workers after the restraining order was issued. The judge said he would keep them in jail for "several days," but did not fix a definite sentence. Contempt citations against Robert Haygood and Jack Gray were dismissed. Mrs. Chalmers was cited for contempt upon charges she threw eggs at two women workers at the paper plant. Another contempt citation naming four additional strikers is still to be heard in superior court under order of Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr.

Early Crisis in War Anticipated by Peterson
SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Representative Hugh Peterson, of the first Georgia district, said today congress expects a crisis in the European war within the next few days. He predicted there would be no adjournment until winter at least. He also said the conscription act would probably be signed by the President this weekend. Congressman Peterson said 25,000 to 50,000 soldiers and officers will come to the first district under the national military program.

young. They propped on their shovels, WPA style, mopped their sweated brows, and called for the water boy, or girl. Then they threw their heads back, swigged down a dipper of cooled water and worked rapidly. The school children feared snakes, hated to walk in the high way, or on the grass-covered walkways; so they proceeded to clean up. They worked diligently and efficiently, looking backward and forward only when they wanted to check their progress. The kiddies were there mostly to supply "nana" and "big sister" with water and to shout what they believed to be a solution to their need for help. Politics too, but it was not their primary purpose. They were there to clean-up their countryside, to beautify their land, and to do what they said they "couldn't get the county commissioners to do" for them. And so they worked until nightfall calling out to passing automobiles: "We need help."

Helen Gilbert To Play Cello In Special Musical Picture Studio Has Promised Her

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10.—In our town . . . Robert Taylor and I talk of home. "I don't want to go back," says Robert. "The last time I went to Nebraska (five years ago), I felt so old. (Bob is now 29). Everyone I knew was married and had children. It was all very depressing." . . . It's hard to recognize George Murphy on a Metro street. His hair is powdered white, and he has lost eight pounds. "I had to slim down to play Judy Garland's lover. Now I am playing her father. So I can eat all I want." George has an interesting theory about athletes. He says they usually are good dancers. George played baseball and football at Yale. And Fred Astaire was a rabid baseball enthusiast as a kid.

Pretty little Helen Gilbert supplies the missing link to my query. "What has happened to you these past months?" "There just hasn't been a suitable picture for me (her last was with Robert Young in "Florian"). But I've been practicing hard on my cello because the studio has promised me a special musical picture," titled "The Girl With a Cello."

This will be the first time Helen plays the instrument for screen audiences. If you remember, she played the cello in the Metro orchestra before her discovery by Woody Van Dyke. She gets Melvyn Douglas and Frank Morgan in the new picture.

Olivia de Havilland pauses outside the Warner theater in Hollywood, looks at some photographs of John Garfield, and screams with laughter. "He does not photograph very well, does he?" gasps Olivia. "He's really better looking than that." John Carroll bounces a ping-pong ball outside Schwab's drug store to the amusement of several small boys. But he looks sheepish and walks away at the sight of this reporter. John, by the way, is excellent as the phoney count in "Hired Wife," the picture for which he made Universal buy him a complete wardrobe. As for Rosalind Russell, she gets better with each picture. She's grand in this one. And wait 'til you hear Robert Benchley snore. He's terrific!

Greta Garbo at a Beverly Hills out-of-town newspaper stand, turning over the pages of a Swedish newspaper. Her costume is exceedingly strange—baggy blue slacks, blue blouse, and a straw bonnet that completely hides her profile in the same way that the blinkers on a horse completely cover its eyes. Of course, far from hiding Greta, this weird get-up draws all the stares. Maybe that's what she wanted.

Greer Garson says she is against slacks for women. She thinks they are unbecoming. "As long as I'm in Hollywood," says Greer, "I'll remain as feminine as I can." What happens, Greer, when you leave? . . . Joan Crawford is expected back here this week to start work in "Woman's Face" and "Bombay Nights." For the latter, she wants Gable for her leading man. . . . Groucho Marx asks me to play tennis with his wife. "I think she'll beat me," I tell him. "No," says Groucho, "even I can beat her—but not on the tennis court."

Belle of Tomorrow

By Lillian Mae.

This pert frock is designed by Lillian Mae to delight the belle-of-tomorrow. The smart mother-of-today will like it too, for its trim wearability and easy "sewability." Make Pattern 4495 for your daughter in one of the spirited, novelty weave wools. Both the front-pointed waist-girdle—a particularly attractive feature—and the panel of the flaring skirt, would look striking on the bias. There are two neckline styles; one square and simple, the other trimmed with a collar which may merrily contrast. Pockets, bows and lace or ric-rac edging are extra gay notes. Take your choice of short puffed sleeves or long, full ones. And send for a pattern without delay.

Pattern 4495 is available in girls' and junior sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 27-8 yards 35-inch fabric and 13-4 yards ric-rac.

Send 15 cents in coins for this pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Three cheers for the Lillian Mae Fall and Winter Pattern Book—just off the press! It's right in key with the American spirit of freedom and individuality.

Scurvy Patient Needs More Vitamin C

By Dr. William Brady.

Dr. R. M. Overstreet reported 15 cases of scurvy in infants aged from 7 months to 31-2 years, seven of them from rural districts. None of them breast fed for longer than three weeks. A few spoonfuls of commercial canned tomato juice, or fresh orange juice, or fresh tomato juice, or any other fresh fruit juice, mixed with their milk daily, would have prevented the scurvy in those infants. They were infants seen in hospital and out-patient clinic. Perhaps their parents were ignorant of the fundamental requirement of every infant for some such fruit juice daily to prevent scurvy. Fresh raw milk contains some vitamin C, perhaps enough to prevent scurvy in the infant if the cows are on pasture. Boiled, sterilized, pasteurized, scalded, canned, evaporated, condensed milk contains little or none. Human breast milk contains considerable, provided the mother's diet includes enough fresh fruit or fresh vegetables and greens. But even the breast-fed baby, and always the bottle-fed baby, should receive some orange juice, tomato juice or other fresh fruit juice every day—if only a teaspoonful or two—mixed with a little water or mixed in the feeding if the baby is bottle-fed.

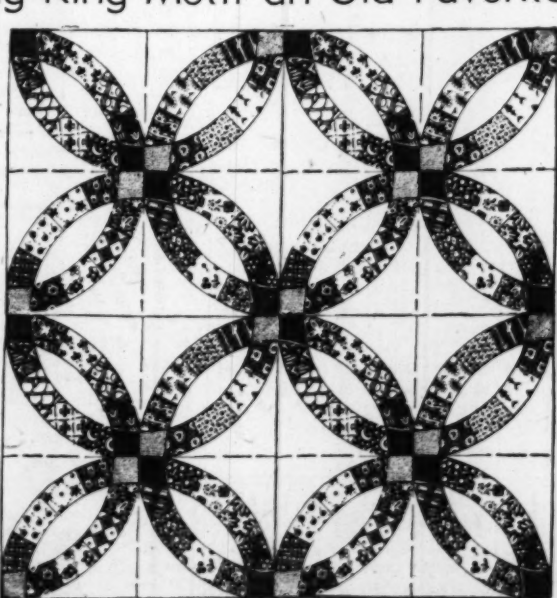

It is the consensus of opinion today that an adequate intake of vitamin C, as in fresh fruit or factory canned fruit or tomato, fresh and canned vegetables, and especially such foods as cabbage, turnip greens, dandelion greens, spinach, Brussels sprouts, kale and broccoli, as well as the less important onions, parsnips, turnips, cauliflower, potatoes, apples and bananas, is essential for the development of normal teeth and the preservation of healthy gums. Probably many individuals whose diet for one reason or another is unduly restricted and whose daily intake of vitamin C is therefore inadequate, suffer from manifestations of scurvy which they ascribe to everything but scurvy. They assume the characteristic swelling and soreness in the joints, particularly the ankles, is "rheumatism." They think the discolorations, or black and blue spots in the skin, are from some injury. They apply various names to the swelling, bleeding and ulceration of the gums and even loosening of teeth in their sockets.

MY DAY: Self-Confidence In the Individual

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Monday.—The service yesterday was an impressive one. All the hymns stressed the fact that this was a day when we were praying for peace. After his sermon, our minister, Mr. Frank Wilson, explained that yesterday the President had asked us all to join in a prayer for peace. Mr. Wilson told us that prayer does not mean something that you say only on one occasion. It is a continuing thing, something you can carry in your heart and mind all the time, and it moulds much of your active life.

I have seen several articles lately in which people have seemed to feel that we are drifting into war. One after the other has said that this or that individual action, or government action, brought us nearer to participation in the European cataclysm. I look at it entirely differently.

It seems to me that a firm, strong attitude is more apt to keep us out of war. War is a mass movement, but masses are made up of individuals. An individual is much more apt to be bullied and badgered until he finally turns upon his assailant and finds himself in a fight, if he is weak and indecisive in character and allows his opponent to take the offensive. An individual, however, who feels strong and full of self-confidence does not invite the aggressor. I feel that as a nation we should be that kind of individual, not wanting to bully anyone, not wanting to take anything away from anyone, but feeling so self-confident and strong that no one desires to oppose us.

After lunch yesterday I went down to Poughkeepsie to say a few words at the unveiling of a monument to General Pulaski. The general did much to help us gain our freedom and it is only right that we should honor him and remember him among our heroes, particularly at this time when freedom everywhere is threatened again. Quite a crowd gathered at the monument and one interesting incident occurred.

A few years ago the women's division of the Democratic state committee held some essay contests and we had a boy who represented Dutchess county as one of the winners. He was an interesting young boy who has now grown to be a young man and is practicing law in Poughkeepsie and managing the campaign for our Democratic candidate for congress. He proved to be my escort at this Polish celebration. I think he is progressing well and I know that it gave me great pleasure to see him again. I am wishing him success in all his undertakings.

Our Norwegian friends left us today, so we all had a picnic supper last night out by the big fireplace on the picnic grounds. The children played all kinds of games afterwards to keep warm. I fear I must acknowledge that autumn has come to stay.

Summer Hair Needs a Fall Tonic

By Winifred Ware.

The high school and college girl's preference for a long bob continues this year. This makes it imperative that long, loose tresses be soft, luxuriant and manageable. Unruly, lifeless hair can mar an otherwise perfect appearance and hair with which you "can't do a thing" plays havoc with a girl's disposition, which in turn plays havoc with her looks.

Fashion, too, decrees gleaming hair, for what presents more hair to view than the stylish off-the-face hats? And still more hair-revealing is the "beanie," so popular with the younger school set.

Beautiful hair is the result of a clean, healthy scalp. At this time of the year, a girl is just winding up a summer of swimming and sunshine, both of which are lots of fun but these sports are not kind to the hair. She now should completely recondition her hair. There's a special hair preparation—a good all-around "tonic"—for her to carry off to school. It will clean and freshen the hair, will take care of loose dandruff and bring back the sheen, which too much hot sun and swimming took away.

Apply this tonic with cotton pads, rubbing well into the scalp. Then go over your head with a clean towel and follow with a vigorous brushing. A little brushing every day will do wonders for the hair and enhance its luster. And be sure always to use a clean comb and brush.

There are occasions when you won't have time to wash your hair. This same preparation serves as an excellent "dry cleaning" in between shampoos.

School girls are aware of the necessity for clean and gleaming hair. We know of a liquid castile soap shampoo which will complete midday's hair toiletries. This shampoo leaves your scalp clean and soft. Of course hair should be rinsed thoroughly after every shampoo.

Both of these articles are well within the school girl's budget and with them tucked in her bags, she's certainly headed for success. Call Winifred Ware at The Constitution and find out where to buy them and the price of each. If you live out of the city, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Winifred Ware in care of The Constitution.

Apple cup cakes topped with creamed cheese are delicious.

Plain Cakes Dress Up for a Party

By Sally Saver.

Due to their simplicity and adaptability, cup cakes are enjoying a renewed popularity. They make a dessert simple enough for a child to eat, party refreshments, plain or fancy, dependent upon whether they're frosted, served with ice cream or a sauce, and they're perfect for late snacks—for that something to serve when bridge games are organized impromptu.

Doubtless you have your own favorite cup cake recipe, but the delicious, different-ness of this one will delight you. These are flavored with fresh apple, grated, and lemon, and the sauce with which they are served is made of cream cheese, moistened with milk, slightly sweetened and with grated apple added. Follow these directions to make them:

- Apple Cup Cakes with Cream Cheese.
- 1-3 cup butter or margarine.
 - 1 cup sugar.
 - 2 egg whites.
 - 1-3 cups flour.
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder.
 - 1-4 cup water.
 - 1 apple, pared and grated.
 - Grated rind of 1 lemon.
 - 2 packages cream cheese.
 - 2 apples, grated.
 - 2 tablespoons sugar.

Cream the butter and 1 cup of sugar well. Add the unbeaten egg whites, one at a time, and beat hard. Sift flour before measuring, then sift it with the baking powder. Add it alternately with the water to the first mixture. Add the grated apple and lemon rind, mix well, and pour into greased muffin tins. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 400 degrees, 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold with the sauce made thus:

Mash cream cheese with fork and add a tablespoon or two of milk or thick cream if cheese is not moist enough. Add 2 apples, peeled and grated, and 3 tablespoons sugar. Blend and serve on muffins. This is good, too, on plain cake slices, ginger bread, on baked apples or as a topping for cookies.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "Which of the quiet toys on this shelf would you like to take to grandmother's with you, your doll, or your book or your scissors and old magazine?"

Mother: "What do you want to take to grandma's to play with?"
Son: "My horn."
Mother: "Oh, no. You can't take that. It is too noisy."

If a child is given a choice, it should be sufficiently limited so that it is possible to abide by his decision.

1940-41 Debutante Club Is Organized With Seventeen Members

Elsa McCall Chosen To Head Charming Coterie of Debs

By Sally Forth

• • • THE FALL SOCIAL SEASON was enthusiastically inaugurated yesterday by the organization of the 1940-41 Debutante Club, held at the Driving Club, with Elsa McCall, pretty blond daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCall, being elected to wield the presidential gavel for the year.

Officers chosen to assist Elsa with her official duties are Mary Jo Brownlee, vice president; Martha Merritt, secretary, and Helen Randall, treasurer.

Additional members of the club are Anne Garrett, Ellie Murrah, Dana Shadburn, Coribel Mason, Jeannette Estes, Hazel Hardin, of Forsyth; Olive Bell Davis, Barbara Indell, Evelyn Harrison, Mary Elizabeth Beers, Gladys Randall, Emmelyn Carter and Helen McDuffie.

Other belles expected to bow who have not yet voiced their intentions are Patty Irwin, Frances Alston, Frances Peace, Eleanor Stafford and Joyce Estes.

The attractive president, who attended Bradford Junior College in Bradford, Mass., last year, is already an acknowledged belle, having collected a vast number of admirers during her high school and college days. Of Dresden coloring, she is slender and stately, and is one of the city's most graceful dancers.

Mary Jo, you know, is the vivacious brunet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Brownlee, while Martha, whose disarming dimples are certain to panic the stag line, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hynds. Helen, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Randall, possesses poise and a graciousness of manner that will further endear her to her sister debs, as well as attract scores of new admirers.

In they came — 17 lovelies modishly attired in fashion's newest hues. They looked the part. Each curl in their smart coiffures was perfectly placed, and each veil subtly flattered a saucy nose. Black predominated in their smart costumes, with soldier blue and beige appearing as stunning accents.

The new debutantes are enthusiastically aware that their charming presences will enliven every brilliant social gathering of the fall season—and Sally, surveying them with pride, affectionately took them under her wing. This year's crop of buds has more than its share of feminine pulchritude, and Atlanta may well be proud that its social activities will be inspired by such a representative group of belles. Announcement is made for the first time today of the party dates selected by a number of debs, the first debut to be that of Ann Garrett, who will be formally presented to society at a party to be held on October 23, which, by the way, is the dainty deb's birthday.

Barbara Indell, golden-haired daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Indell, will bow at a tea-dance at the Capital City Country Club on November 1.

Mary Lib Beers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Beers, will be introduced to society at a brilliant reception to be held on November 7.

On November 8 the social calendar will be highlighted by the elaborate ball at which Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hynds will formally present their daughter, Martha Merritt, to society. This affair will be held at the Driving Club, and will assemble several hundred members of the married and unmarried social contingents.

Ellie Murrah and Dana Shadburn will make their formal bows, together at a breakfast to be held on November 16 at the Piedmont Driving Club, this affair to precede the Tech-Alabama football game.

The Driving Club will again provide the setting on November 22 for the ball at which Mr. and Mrs. Luther Randall will entertain in compliment to their daughter, Helen. Sally hears it rumored, however, that Helen's party may possibly be changed to Christmas Eve.

Hazel Hardin, of Forsyth, who is an attractive out-of-towner brightening Atlanta's debutante ranks, will bow at a luncheon to be held during the Christmas holidays. Hazel, you know, will resume her studies at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, where she is a member of the senior class, and her debut party will be enlivened by the presence of a group of her classmates. Attractive blond Jeannette Estes is another bud whose debut party will assemble her classmates. Jeannette will bow in December, when her friends at National Park Seminary in Washington, D. C., where she attended school last year, can be present.

Among the most brilliant parties of the winter season will be that at which the Julian Harrisons will introduce to society their charming daughter, Evelyn, this attractive bud to bow at a supper-dance, preceded by a reception to be held at the Driving Club on either December 12 or 13.

Helen McDuffie, who follows in the footsteps of her lovely sister, Mrs. Henry Maddox, the former Betty McDuffie, will also bow in November, the seventh day of that month having been tentatively chosen.

Emmelyn Carter is trying to decide whether to bow at a tea-dance or reception, her party to feature the December social calendar.

Andy Dumas, vivacious daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Dumas, and Catherine Lane, lovely brunet daughter of the Walter Lanes, were not present at the meeting, but have been issued invitations to join the club.

Followers of Dame Fashion will be interested to know what the season's buds are wearing. Olive Bell Davis, who bears startling resemblance to pretty Ginny Simms, Kay Kyser's vocalist, was gownned in black fashioned with shirred sleeves of bracelet length, and accented by a varicolored necklace.

Dana Shadburn wore blue woolen featuring white angora pockets. . . . Ellie Murrah was smartly gownned in beige with brown accessories. . . . Barbara Indell chose soldier blue woolen studded with silver nailheads and worn with brown accessories. . . . Jeannette Estes donned brown, offset by gold ornaments. . . . Ann Garrett wore flag blue crepe, the skirt of which featured panels of mauve pink. Her hat and accessories were of matching blue. . . . Hazel Hardin wore black with amethyst clips. . . . Coribel Mason donned black with a Kelly green sash. . . . Helen Randall wore a soldier blue model fashioned with a brief double-breasted jacket, and accented by brown accessories. . . . Others stunningly gownned in black were Martha Merritt, Elsa McCall, Gladys Randall, Mary Jo Brownlee and Evelyn Harrison. . . . Helen McDuffie chose a vintage shade for her costume, while Emmelyn Carter wore soldier blue and Mary Lib Beers chose brown, offset by a dashing upturned hat.

A color motif of lavender and yellow predominated at the luncheon at which the Driving Club complimented the debs following the meeting. Bobo Spalding, president of last season's Debutante Club, presided and welcomed the 1940-41 deb coterie.

The club's next meeting will be held next Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Sorority Meets.

Beta Chapter of Sigma Tau Delta sorority meets today at 3 o'clock at Davidson's, at which time plans for rush week will be discussed.

Newly elected officers are: President, Miss Ann Courtney; vice president, Miss Sybil Jay; treasurer, Miss Jean Teabout; sergeant at arms, Miss Antoinette Cole; secretary, Miss Martha Dodgen.

Chapel Guild Meets.

The Sacred Heart Chapel Guild meets today at 2:30 o'clock in the assembly room. Plans for activities to be held during the coming year will be discussed. Refreshments will be served.

Whiteford Club.

Mrs. W. F. Carmichael, 88 Aniston avenue, S. E., entertained the Whiteford Garden Club recently. Mrs. Hugh Chandler won the blue ribbon for arrangements

Popular belles of Atlanta society who met yesterday to form the 1940-41 Debutante Club included: Seated, left to right, Misses Emmelyn Carter, Mary Elizabeth Beers, Olive Bell

Mason. Another member of the club who was not present when the picture was made is Miss Hazel Hardin, of Forsyth. Additional members will possibly be announced at a later date.

Miss Dover Weds William Jackson At Church Rites

The marriage of Miss Rebecca Dover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Dover, and William L. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jackson, of Windsor, was solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock at the Kirkwood Baptist church. Dr. K. O. White performed the ceremony and a program of music was presented by Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Neal.

Palms and ferns interspersed with candelabra holding burning white tapers formed the effective background and completing the decorations were floor baskets filled with white asters, gladioli and snapdragons.

Groomsmen-ushers were Henry B. Dover, of Tallahassee, Fla., brother of the bride; Tom Mauney, of Cleveland; Ralph Hilburn, Dudley Jones, Bubba Bullard and T. E. Sanders.

Miss Irene Dover, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was becomingly gownned in a floor-length model of aqua moire taffeta fashioned with a deep cream lace yoke and tiny, self-covered buttons. She carried a bouquet of blue delphinium bordered with yellow roses and snapdragons.

The bridesmaids were Misses Eloise Hames, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Anna Catherine Jones, both nieces of the bride; Miss Marie Jackson and Mrs. Ralph Hilburn, sisters of the groom. They wore yellow moire taffeta designed like that worn by the maid-of-honor and they carried yellow roses and gladioli bordered with blue delphinium. The bridal attendants all wore clusters of yellow roses in their hair.

Little Miss Harriett McHenry, of Shreveport, was flower girl. She wore a dainty model of aquamarine taffeta and carried a basket of rose petals. Henry Baker Dover Jr., nephew of the bride, wore a white satin suit and carried the ring to the altar on a white satin pillow.

The lovely bride entered with her brother, B. F. Dover, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Cham Jackson, who served as best man. She was gownned in white satin made along Princess lines and featuring an Alencon lace yoke and long sleeves ending with points over the hands. Tiny self-covered buttons extended from the sweetheart neckline to the waistline to which was gathered the full skirt that extended into a graceful train from an inserted panel in the back. Her veil of illusion was caught to her hair with a cluster of gardenias and valley lilies. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies centered with an orchid. Her only ornament was a gold pendant studded with pearls.

Mrs. Dover, mother of the bride, was gownned in orchid chiffon with which she wore a shoulder spray of pink rosebuds and valley lilies. Mrs. Jackson, mother of the groom, chose for her son's wedding a model of blue crepe with which she wore a spray of gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. Jackson and his bride left for a wedding trip and upon their return they will reside in Atlanta, where the groom is affiliated in business. Mrs. Jackson chose for traveling a full-length dress and a short coat trimmed with brown fox fur. She wore brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her costume.

Among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Dover and Henry B. Dover Jr., of Tallahassee, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hames and Bob Hames, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Baker, of Monroe; Mrs. Amanda Tomlinson, of Lancaster, Pa.; Tom Mauney, of Cleveland; Miss Virginia Allen, of Gainesville; Mrs. H. J. McHenry, of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Arthur Spores, of Houston, Texas.

Cavalier Club.

The Cavalier Club of Atlanta entertained recently in honor of its newly elected officers, who are Joe Bloomfield, president; Marty Semon, vice president; and Jimmy Payne, treasurer, and Jimmy O'Shea, secretary. The club will hold a bingo party Friday at the Columbia Club, 1200 Peachtree street.

How To Relieve FEMALE FUNCTIONAL COMPLAINTS

Few women today do not have some sign of functional trouble. Maybe you've noticed YOURSELF getting restless, moody and nervous lately? Then try famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help quiet unstrung nerves, relieve monthly pains (cramps, backache, headache) and weak, nervous, dizzy spells due to lack of blood. Her word is: Pinkham's Compound has helped thousands of run-down, nervous women to go smiling thru "difficult times." Try it!

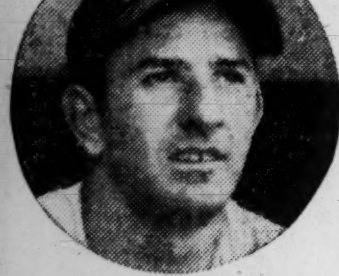

Crackers Blank Chicks, 8-0, as Herman Besse Hurls Six-Hitter

BY JACK TROY

Hurry, Men! I am sore afraid some of the baseball scouts of the land still don't realize what a year Emil Mailho has had for the Crackers.

The peppery field captain never has had a bad year, always hits around .330, draws 100 bases on balls, drives in more than 70 runs, and led his teammates in two-base hits.

EMIL MAILHO

As said, his reputation for good years is superb. But he has never had such a year as this one since he left the Pacific Coast league.

Here are the highlights of his great year—Led his teammates in batting with a rattling .364. (John Rucker went to the majors on a .346 average.) Collected 202 hits . . . scored 144 runs . . . had 305 total bases . . . drove out 57 doubles, 8 triples, 10 home runs . . . stole 14 bases and batted in 77 runs. In scoring 144 runs, he missed James Partridge's league record by only 11 runs.

Not all of the baseball scouts are unaware of what Mailho has done. A few of them have been watching him. Then, too, a couple of major clubs have professed to be interested in him.

Mailho is the mystery ball player of the Southern league. For years he has been considered by writers and managers as the league's finest all-around outfielder.

Many's the time he could have been had for the draft price of $6,000. Nobody wanted him. Connie Mack, of course, sold him originally to Atlanta some five years ago.

Why Mailho hasn't gone up is still a puzzle. He isn't too small. He seldom gets hurt. He has a good arm and is fast. At least they are beginning to give him a tumble and no longer can he be had for the draft price. The Crackers are going to sell him first, and $6,000 won't begin to open the bidding.

Bargain Night Tomorrow night we will know, definitely and irrevocably, whether or not Atlanta is a tennis town. Don McNeill is coming to town. He's the new national singles champion.

But the mere fact that McNeill is coming doesn't spell success.

Atlanta has had great champions here through the years—the Tildens, the Budes, the Grants, the Vines, the Riggs, et al. Patronage never has been what it might have been, as it were.

The answer as to what the reason is will be known one way or another tomorrow night.

A new scale of prices will be in effect. Atlanta tennis followers never have been offered such a bargain.

McNeill, the Oklahoma sensation, may be seen in

Barnes Beaten In 8-Man Play For 7 Places

Dick Chapman Wins Medal at 140; Match Play Starts Today.

By BILL BONI.
MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10. (AP)—Practice in private paid off today as Dick Chapman, who hails variously from New York, Philadelphia, Greenwich, Conn., and the Winged Foot Golf Club, won the medal in the 36-hole qualifying round of the forty-fourth national amateur golf championship with a four-under-par score of 140.

Leading 64 of the country's best into match play which starts tomorrow with two 18-hole rounds.

Scores of Atlantans in the 36-hole qualifying for the National Amateur Championship included:
Tommy Barnes, 78-77-155.
Gene Gaillard, 75-83-158.
Gene Dahlbender Jr., 88-79-167.
Crawford Rainwater, 83-76-159.

Chapman played the Winged Foot west course in 34-35-69, three under par, to capture top honors by a five-stroke margin.

One of the two 71 shooters was T. B. Duff, McCullough Jr., one of the Philadelphia district's best and a former Pennsylvania state champion. His fine round of 36, 35 tied him for runner-up honors with defending champion Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., who shot a 73.

SEVEN 155s GET IN.
With 155 the highest qualifying score, those shut out included ex-champions George Dunlap, of New York; Johnny Goodman, of Omaha; Chick Evans, of Chicago, and Francis Ouimet, of Boston. The only other player of rank to miss out was Public Links Titleholder Bob Clark, of St. Paul, with 81-83-164.

Willford Wehrle, of Chicago, and Tom Sheehan, last year's record-setting medalist, had 150. Art Doering, beaten by Ward in the 1939 semi-finals, and Harry Haverstick, of Lancaster, Pa., had 151. Willie Turnesa and Ray Billows, two highly touted local threats, and Pat Abbott, of Pasadena, Cal., had 152.

Mourned almost more than anyone was Bing Crosby. The genial crooner, working on a disastrous first-round 83, made a game try by coming home in 37 this afternoon, but by then he'd taken too many shots and his 160 total was five shots away from an eight-man playoff for seven places.

Winners in a one-hole playoff were Doug Ford, of Uckahoe, N. Y.; Frank Toronto, of Sacramento, Cal.; Jim Oleska, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bobby Dunkelberger, of Greensboro, N. C.; Toby Lyons, of Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Charles Clark, of Orange, Conn.; Ted Bishop, of Auburndale, Mass. Ford, Toronto and Bishop had par 4s, the others bogey 5s. Eliminated was Tommy Barnes, of Atlanta, Ga., on a 6.

Don McNeill Plays Grant In Exhibition Match Tonight

National Champion To Team With Don Buffington Against Bitsy and Russell Bobbitt.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Don McNeill, new national singles champion, will make his first public appearance since winning the crown here tonight against Bitsy Grant in an exhibition match at the Northside Tennis Club at 8:30 o'clock.

The youthful Oklahoma City star, who defeated Bobby Riggs Monday in the finals of the amateur tennis classic of the country, is at the top of his game and will be heavily favored to defeat the Atlanta Atom.

However, you can't fool around with Bitsy on a clay court, as net fans will know, and there isn't a blade of grass on the Northside Club courts.

McNeill will team with Don Buffington, ex-state champion, in a doubles match against Grant and Russell Bobbitt. Bobbitt played with Frank Guernsey in the national doubles meet to win their way into the semi-finals before being eliminated.

HARD HITTERS.
On their way they defeated Riggs and Wells. Horn, Bobbitt is considered one of the best doubles players in the country and the tandem match should be crammed with action as Mitchell does not know what it is to hit the ball easy.

Feature of the exhibition is the prices. Top seats will go for $1.10 and all the rest will sell for 55c. It's probably the cheapest price in history when the national champion was involved.

The Atlanta Lawn Tennis Association, sponsor of the match, was extremely fortunate in getting McNeill here for the exhibition. The agreement was made before Don won the title, which is probably the real reason he is here.

BEAT RIGGS THREE.
He has defeated Riggs, No. 1 player in the nation this year, three times this season and will probably supplant him at the head of the rankings when the new ones come out.

His play in the National Tournament was little short of sensational. In advancing to the finals, McNeill dropped only one set and that to young Jack Kramer. Don displayed a remarkable comeback in defeating Riggs for the championship. He dropped the first two sets but rallied to win the next three and the match.

Atlantans who saw the finals say McNeill is playing as near perfect tennis as possible. He is on top of his slam-bang game and it will be a long time before another such exhibition will be staged here.

Ticket reservations may be made at the Northside Tennis Club.

Tenpinners See Picture Tonight

C. E. Vance, field representative of the American Bowling Congress, will be honor guest tonight at the meeting of the Atlanta Bowling Association, scheduled for 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. Pictures of tenpin bowlers in action will be shown. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Jeffcoat Sets Record With 18 Strikeouts

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 10. (AP)—George Jeffcoat, ace Nashville right-hander broke the Southern Association record for strikeouts tonight, fanning 18 batters as the Vols whipped the Chattanooga Lookouts in the opening game of the Shaugnessy Playoff Series, 6 to 1.

Jeffcoat's feat bettered the mark of Jennings Poindexter, who as a member of the Little Rock Travelers struck out 17 men in a game against Nashville in 1936.

The Nashville hurler was in brilliant form as his sharp-breaking curve mowed down batter after batter to cling to a slim 2-1 margin before Gus Dugas blasted a home run over the right field fence with the bases full in the seventh inning to make his task easier.

Ashurst Trailing in Arizona; Stassen Leads in Minnesota

Senator's Foe Based Campaign on Ashurst's Opposition to Draft; Eight States Hold Primaries; Four Congressmen Behind in Louisiana.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 10.—(P)

The veteran Henry Fountain Ashurst, who has served Arizona in the United States senate since statehood in 1912, was running a poor second for the Democratic nomination in early tabulations of today's primary balloting.

Tabulations from four precincts complete and 24 incomplete out of 438 gave Ernest W. McFarland, Pinal county superior court judge, 2,052 votes to Ashurst's 915. Henderson Stockton, Phoenix attorney, and Robert Miller, Phoenix druggist, were out of the running. Stockton had 118, Miller 76.

McFarland directed his campaign at Ashurst's opposition to conscription, and bitterly criticized the senator for "spending too much time in Washington." He urged the voters to "get rid of the remote control."

Representative John R. Muddock, who had been attacked for his vote against the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, took an early lead. He had 889 votes to 546 for Howard J. Smith, and 492 for William R. Mathews, Tucson publisher.

Burt Clingan, Phoenix attorney and the nominee against Senator Carl Hayden in 1938, was leading Irving A. Jennings, also of Phoenix, 109 to 95 for the Republican senatorial nomination.

SHIPSTEAD, STASSEN LEAD IN EARLY RETURNS
MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 10.—(P) United States Senator Henrik Shipstead jumped into an early lead over a field of seven rivals for his senate seat tonight as the first returns from today's Minnesota's primary election came in.

Shipstead, who turned Republican this summer after 18 years as a Farmer-Laborite in the senate, had 1,742 votes to 1,051 for Martin Nelson of Austin, his closest rival, in 36 of the state's 5,683 precincts.

Republican Governor Harold Stassen, whose ally in behalf of Wendell L. Wilkie has linked his campaign closely with that of the Republican presidential candidate, took an immediate lead in his party's race for the nomination for governor.

In 36 precincts, Stassen had 3,174 votes to 94 for A. B. Gilbert, of Mound, and 27 for Ernest Jacobsen, of Excelsior.

In the Farmer-Labor contest for governor, Hjalmar Petersen, railroad and warehouse commissioner, and former governor, had 226 votes to 33 for Edgar Ryan Bernard in 21 precincts.

FOUR CONGRESSMEN PURGED IN LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—(P) Incomplete returns in today's Louisiana Democratic primary indicated defeat for four of Louisiana's seven incumbent members of the house of representatives who stood for re-election and run-off races five weeks hence for the other three.

The eighth incumbent congressman did not stand for re-election in the heated primary in which the "reform" forces of Governor Sam H. Jones attempted to unseat the state's entire representation in the house.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT DEFENDS FATHER'S RECORD.
MINERAL WELLS, Tex., Sept. 10.—(P) Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, rose to a defense of government spending before the Texas Democratic convention today after it had been criticized by the keynote speaker, Hal R. Collins, of Mineral Wells.

To Collins' boomed—and applauded—assertion that "wasteful" federal spending must be halted, young Roosevelt, his face flushed, shouted back:

"I've heard a great deal today about wasteful spending—saying that has been going on in this country for the past seven years for a purpose. Back in March, 1933, do you remember when the banks were closed, millions were waiting in line for soup to be handed out to them?"

"That money has been spent to keep the spark of hope and life in the hearts of all Americans, regardless of their circumstances."

Collins, sitting directly behind Roosevelt, smiled continuously, frequently applauded laudatory remarks about the President.

NEW DEAL CRITIC WINS IN VERMONT
MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 10.—(P) Governor George D. Aiken, a frequent public critic of the New Deal, took a long step tonight toward a seat in the United States senate as he decisively defeated Ralph E. Flanders in the Republican senatorial primary.

The Aiken-Flanders contest for the place left vacant by the death of Senator Ernest W. Gibson, Republican, who was re-elected in 1938, was the only battle for a major office that marked the primaries of this traditionally Republican state. Flanders campaigned as a "businessman" candidate; Aiken, as a veteran of office holder.

With all of the state's 246 cities and towns counted, the vote stood: Aiken 37,044; Flanders 28,453.

WALLGREN, CHADWICK, AHEAD IN WASHINGTON
SEATTLE, Sept. 10.—(P) Reports from seven precincts of Washington state's 3,020 tonight gave Representative Monrad Wallgren an early lead for Democratic nomination for United States senator, with Stephen F. Chadwick, former national commander of the American Legion, leading in the Republican race.

Democratic returns showed: Wallgren 81, Roy B. Miesner 37, Frank Bell 35.

Mrs. Carroll, 86, Resident Here Six Years, Dies

Requiem Mass Will Be Said Tomorrow; Burial in Altoona.

Mrs. Margaret Carroll, 86, died last night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. N. C. Doyle, at 1710 Rogers avenue, S. W., where she had lived for six years.

A native of Scotland, Mrs. Carroll had lived most of her life in Pennsylvania. Her late husband, John P. Carroll, was for many years an employee of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Other survivors include three sons, Frank J. Carroll, of Olean, N. Y.; J. E. Carroll, of Toledo, Ohio; and C. R. Carroll, of Philadelphia.

Rosary services will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the chapel of St. Mary's church, with the Right Rev. Monsignor Joseph Croke, the Rev. Father James H. Conlin and the Rev. Father N. J. Quinlan officiating. The body will be taken to Altoona, Pa., for burial.

Orders Calling State Troops Placed in Mail

Men From 19 Towns Will Be Inducted Into U. S. Army.

Orders calling about 2,500 Georgia national guardsmen to mobilize for induction into the United States army were placed in the mail yesterday.

In an epochal mobilization order August 30, President Roosevelt called 25 units of the 30th national guard division—including Georgia guardsmen in at least 19 towns—to report at Camp Jackson, S. C., this month for one year of active military training.

The President's order called a total of 60,500 officers and men of the national guard in 26 states to colors for peacetime training.

Most troops are expected to arrive at camp within a week after being inducted into the army at their home armories September 1.

Rod Is Surprised to Hear That Brooke Has Job in New York and Will Stay

SYNOPSIS. Brooke Carter, her mother dead, her father remarried, quits as secretary to a Chatham, N. H., physician and goes to New York to be secretary-companion to wealthy Mrs. Kingsbury whom she had met while on the steamship. Brooke has come to New York to be near Rod, to whom she has been engaged for four years and who has been very successful in his work for Barney Glass since he finished college three years ago. Business has kept Rod very busy; she has not seen him for three months; also, he felt he could not refuse Glass' invitation to pass his vacation on a yachting and fishing trip. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT II.

Of his life in New York, apart from his work, Jim and the small apartment, she knew nothing and did not, since he did not tell her. That he worked hard and for long hours she knew, Jim having said often, "He's a glutton for work, that guy. He'll be president of the whole works some day." But a thorough knowledge of Rod, as neat in his thoughts as his appearance, moral, healthy, conscious and ambitious, had given her an unshakable faith despite her father's frequent remark that "Rod probably has a score of girls in New York." Moreover, jealousy of the torturing, sickening kind had been conquered the first year he was away to school.

Though she had no tangible symbol of their engagement—only the still fresh memory of words and kisses on a summer day several years ago—she hoped each time she saw him that he would set a definite time for their marriage. For each time she returned to Chatham after a weekend in New York, Melen always asked, "Have you and Rod set the date?"

Loving him, she was patient and excused him, wondering at times if Rod did not consider that his first obligation was to his mother and that he must, since Grace was periodically in poor health, relieve her of the responsibility of the boarding house and provide adequately for her before he could marry. That obligation Brooke recognized and respected. But how long would they go on like this, she had been asking herself more and more of late, seeing each other only in crowded restaurants and night clubs, dancing a little, talking a little, dashing to the station on Sunday afternoon to her train? It could not go on indefinitely. They were losing what they were not, that she cared less, that Rod cared less.

Lifting her head she looked out. It was quite dark now. May she always feel like this, glowing inside, her hands a little weak, in anticipation of his coming. But the time! Glancing at the old-fashioned gold watch on her arm, she saw that she had but half an hour in which to dress. Clothes were important. If only often she wished that they were not, that she cared less, that Rod cared less.

The half hour slipped away while she dashed under the shower and brushed her hair and put on a black silk frock with a rhinestone pin at the throat, taking infinite care as she pulled a ridiculous little black hat over her right eye. White gloves. Her black coat brushed the back of her New Hampshire removed from the tall-heeled black suede pumps. Would she ever feel perfectly "turned out" to meet him?

Waiting, she thought, still waiting as she looked at herself critically in the dressing-table mirror, disregarding the small straight nose and generous mouth, cherry-colored, forgetting that the same young artist who had called her hair the color of smoke had also said that it was the shape of her skull that made her beautiful and that she had a face for ecstasy and faith. Her thoughts scattered again. Her father's saying, "I hope you aren't making a mistake, Brooke. You're taking a good deal on yourself to do this." Grace's saying, "I think it's a wonderful idea. Give my love to Rod and tell him please, to come home soon even if it's only for a day." But invariably her thoughts came back to the moment when she would step from the elevator downstairs to a tangible Rod, close enough to touch. The phone had rung only once when she picked it up.

"I'm downstairs, Brooke," Rod said.

"I'll be down in a moment." It's been three months since I've seen him, she thought, and I'm as excited as if he were a new lover I was trying to impress. Odd, having known him so long, she could still feel confused, wordless, her emotions shaking her, his touch shutting out everything except the sensation of his touch.

The elevator stopped abruptly and she stepped off, noting instantly that Rod's dark clothes were new. He looked tired but he was smiling, his dark eyes taking in all of her as he removed a brown hat from his black hair. Always he must look at her like this. And always the sight of him must stir her and take away her breath a little and cause her face to burn.

"Darling," Rod said and gave her a brief embrace and a light kiss. "This is a surprise!"

"I've others. Surprises, I mean," and laughed lightly, feeling a tide of great happiness sweep over her. "Any particular place you want to have dinner?" Rod asked.

"It doesn't matter. You always take me to a different place."

"I want to know what all this mystery is about and why you're in New York on Thursday."

He looked perplexed, curious. She laughed happily. They got a taxi and sat close, their hands joined. He looked at her again, his eyes searching hers soberly before he kissed her again.

"I've missed you, Rod..."

"I've missed you. And writing letters..."

She did not want an apology. "Sometimes there isn't anything to say."

"I've been so busy at the office all day and sometimes half the night..."

"You take it so seriously, darling..."

His smile was a little bitter. "Yes, don't I? How is mother?"

"Fine now. She sent her love and wants you to come home."

He frowned at that. "She just doesn't understand that I can't get away."

"Was your western trip successful?"

"Yes, quite."

"I'm afraid nothing is ever quite so perfect as you want it, Rod."

"Except you."

Their eyes met again, then their lips. Her hands pressed against his shoulders. He looked so tired. Business took so much out of him. Breathlessly against his face, she said, "I love you."

"And I love you, Brooke. You're so beautiful—and so dear."

"You write 'I love you,' but it never means as much as when you say it—close to me."

He smiled. "That's a crazy hat you're wearing."

"All hats are crazy."

"I like it. It's becoming."

"Thank you. How is Jim?"

"Oh, that's something I have to tell you. I've moved."

He took her to a place where a famous orchestra played mellow music. An expensive place, she thought. The best for her! She was too happy to analyze the gesture in any other way.

He ordered cocktails and lighted a cigarette. "Well? What is this all about?"

She leaned forward. "I've come to stay—at least for several months. It was the summer you stayed at school to do extra work that Mrs. Kingsbury came to your mother's. You must remember our talking about her."

"The rich old lady?"

"Yes! She was born and raised just outside Chatham and married a wealthy man and has spent nearly all her life traveling. That summer she came back to Chatham was her first visit in 45 years. She knew our grandparents. I saw a good bit of her that summer when she asked me to write some letters and read to her. Her eyesight is very poor. Well, last week she stopped in Chatham again with your mother and sent for me. She plans to live in New York for the rest of the winter and asked me to live with her as a sort of secretary-companion until she goes to California in June..."

"You won't go with her?"

"No. Not that far away." From you? "She has a niece in California whom she visits every year. Rod, I took it because I could be near you..."

"It's wonderful, but—but isn't she just a cranky old lady who'll be difficult?"

"I wouldn't exactly call her a sweet old lady, but she's quiet, at least, and..."

Rod laughed. "It's fantastic, but it's—it's great, of course! She might die and leave you all her money."

"That isn't likely. Her niece in California has children."

"Too bad. Where are you going to live here?"

"She's taken an apartment, which is being made ready for us now. She has a maid, Ellen, and a chauffeur, Francis. I'm to write letters, go shopping with her and make things in general easier for her. For which I'm to be paid a hundred dollars a month." And thought, when a chic young woman passed, that she would buy clothes with the first check. "She's visiting in Boston now and she'll arrive here on Monday. I came down a few days before—to see you. And another thing," she added brightly, "all my nights will be free after nine. Mrs. Kingsbury has to go to bed early."

He nodded, not smiling, his eyes absent. "What did your father think of this, Brooke?"

"He thought I was foolish and impulsive to give up a permanent position to accept a temporary one. But this offer was a passport to you."

The tips of his fingers touched hers. "It's swell. We'll do a lot."

When their cocktails came, she said, "You said you'd moved, Rod..."

He nodded lighting a cigarette. "Yes. To a larger apartment, alone. I'll take you there later. I hated the additional expense, but—but appearances are important and I had to have a place where I could have people in. The other place was pretty awful, and Jim had a habit of bringing in the oddest people at all hours. He didn't like it, my moving." Looking at her, he said gently, "You understand, don't you, that if I'm to get anywhere certain things are expected of me. And where you live and the people you know are important. I had a substantial salary increase after the western trip and I've got to put all of it into better living, better clothes."

She told herself that she must understand, that she must not say she would be satisfied with very little if they would marry quite soon and that Grace, overworked, deserved rest and leisure. Rod clear-headed, trained, efficient, was undoubtedly right. If they waited a little longer...

"Of course you must."

With relief he said, "I knew you'd understand. Jim didn't."

"You and Jim didn't..."

"Yes. We had a row. He couldn't see my point of view at all. I couldn't see his."

"Perhaps I can make him see yours." They had been such good friends for so long...

"Perhaps you can. He's crazy about you." Then, "That music is too good to waste."

When they had circled the floor once, she felt Rod stiffen. Looking up quickly, she heard him murmur to two men who were just coming in, two men who nodded and studied her briefly but critically before they passed on.

"The short chap is Mr. Glass," Rod said. "The other one is Julian Carlton."

The short one... She glanced over Rod's shoulder, seeing that Mr. Glass, wearing a dark business suit, was indeed short, stout, bald, spectacled and far advanced in middle age. So it was he, who looked both shrewd and jolly, whose name Rod had spoken with reverence and on whose yacht Rod had spent his vacation last summer. The other, Julian Carlton, who towered above the round Mr. Glass, wore gray tweeds and had a deep tan becoming a fair man. He was many years younger than his companion. He was poised and assured, his profile strong, chin proud and firm. In a room filled with pale people he looked both distinguished and healthy. It occurred to her, too, she was later to remember, that she had been mistaken in thinking that only men of Rod's dark good looks were handsome.

DRAMA—Jean Hersholt as "Dr. Christian" will conduct a "School for Fathers" in an amusing comedy of that title, written for the series by Ruth Adams Knight, to be broadcast over WGST at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Rosemary de Camp again will be heard as Judy Price, the doctor's secretary, chief assistant and demonstrator in the school.

The good doctor discovers a pair of young fathers deep in the doldrums because of the fuss made in their households over the baby. One has a mother-in-law who pampers the child, while the other suffers with an aunt who keeps the baby on such a strict schedule he never gets to see it. Both are sure that taking care of a baby is a simple matter, which they could manage twice as efficiently as the workmenfolk. Dr. Christian offers to give them a few basic instructions so they can demonstrate, and the two young fathers are delighted.

TALK—President Roosevelt will speak over the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System tonight. The talk will be heard over WGST at 9:30 o'clock. The President will be heard from Constitution Hall in Washington, where he is to address a meeting of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs.

MANHATTAN—Janet Fox, popular character actress, will play her first romantic lead in "Manhattan at Midnight" during the broadcast of that program to be heard over WAGA at 7:30 o'clock tonight. She will be supported by a pair of microphone veterans, Ed Jerome and Bill Johnston.

Miss Fox, who is the niece of Edna Ferber, will play the role of "Gail Martin" in Theodore and Mathilde Ferber's story of marriage doomed to destruction by a young couple who have allowed careers to come first in their interests. When a young magazine editor and his costume designer wife decide to keep working after their marriage in order to save for the future, they do not suspect that it will jeopardize having a future together at all. A trip to Reno points the way to an unexpected happiness in a surprise climax to the drama.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—The period previous to 10:30 a. m. does not especially favor important matters, plans, decisions or changes. After 10:30 a. m. conditions improve, making the day favorable for literary matters, publishing and general business. Be especially cautious in travel after 4:15 p. m.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The period previous to 11:45 a. m. favors ordinary interests or personal, domestic and business matters. From 11:45 a. m. through 6:30 p. m. does not especially favor new or important undertakings. The vibrations after 6:30 p. m. incline to mental and physical activity, and suggest moderation and discrimination in all that you do.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The entire day and evening favor literary work, research work, dealings with publishers and printers. An excellent day to start new enterprises.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Until 11:45 a. m. favors home interests, real estate, humanitarian and fraternal interests. After 11:45 a. m. favors ordinary routine matters.

July 23rd and Aug. 22nd (LEO)—The period previous to 11 a. m. favors matters of a domestic, personal, business and financial nature. After 11 a. m. does not especially favor new or important undertakings. Better to wait until a more auspicious time.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—During the entire day the greatest caution should be used in making agreements and all risks where liabilities are concerned. The evening hours are excellent for sociability and pleasure.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—The period previous to 12:30 noon favors matters of a general, domestic and business nature. After 12:30 noon does not especially favor new plans or undertakings. A good day to relax and give attention to health.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—The day does not especially favor new or important undertakings, plans, decisions, changes or risky ventures. The vibrations tend to promote high nervous tension, apprehension and doubt. A good day to stick to routine.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—An excellent day for political interests and plans. The best aspects of the day operate between 3 p. m. and 10:15 p. m. The period favors promises, agreements and contracts.

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Beginning today and continuing through Sunday, Spelman College will be busy initiating members of the freshman class into a knowledge of college life. Various activities have been planned by Dean Jane Hope Lyons. New students entering the college in the past few days and a large class is expected to be present for first activities this morning.

Eleventh year at Atlanta University Laboratory school began Monday morning with a joint meeting of the faculties of the elementary and high schools in Oiles Hall. Presiding was Principal William A. Robinson, who was welcomed back by the faculty, after a leave of absence to direct a study of secondary schools for the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes.

Christian Home Club of the Grace Methodist church will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the church parlor. Mrs. J. T. LaHatte and Mrs. Claude Gamble will be the hostesses.

For the past few days, freshmen have been arriving at Morehouse College in large numbers for the opening of freshman week activities which begin today on the campus. Under the supervision of Dean B. J. Brazel, a well-planned program designed Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exclusively prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is application for massaging the body during pregnancy. It helps keep the skin soft and pliable, thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin. For the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

PROS and CONS

In your club, society, or other organization this fall and winter there will be debates aplenty—debates planned, and those that arise over some point of procedure, or in the discussion of a statement made in the course of the program. You want to be informed as to the parliamentary law on the subject—you will need suggestions for debate subjects—you should know the proper way to conduct the meeting—the way to prepare the material for your debate. This group of three bulletins, available from The Constitution's Washington Service Bureau, is just what you need.

The bulletins are:
1. Club Woman's Manual—good for any type of club.
2. Debates—a manual for debaters.
3. Parliamentary Law—rules for the orderly conduct of meetings.

Send ten cents in stamps or coin, to pay postage and other costs, for the entire group. The address is 1013 Thirteenth Street, Washington, D. C. Use this coupon.

British Women And Children Flee Capital

Appeal Issued for Aid of Families Made Homeless by Bombs.

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS.
LONDON, Sept. 10. (UP)—Thousands of women and children, many of them in the daze of shellshock, fled from besieged London today as sirens wailed new warnings of death from the skies and the government broadcast an appeal to aid the destitute. Leaving their menfolk behind to deal with what one benumbed East End refugee muttered was "mass murder, not war," they jammed railroad trains, begged rides from motorists and pleaded with authorities to find havens for them beyond the rain of Nazi bombs.

In the heavily-bombed East End tenement districts women and children trudged aimlessly with bundles of belongings snatched from the debris of what had been their homes.

Urges Assistance. Minister of Health Malcolm MacDonald, in a radio appeal, called upon the more fortunate of Londoners to provide aid to families left homeless by the German bombs and warned that the numbers of destitute may be expected to increase steadily.

He asked, not only homes, but the loan of furniture and bedding.

The Federation of Tenants and Residents' Associations, calling in 175 affiliated groups, asked urgent action to meet the housing shortage resulting from the mass bombings and began listing empty flats to house the homeless.

The exodus was assuming the proportions of an evacuation. But in no wise was it a concession of defeat. The British people were digging in for a siege, removing their women and children to safer places to spare them the danger of bombardment.

Men Stay Behind. The men stayed behind, putting on tin helmets, hiking to work, and carrying on in line with the best British traditions. In the East End, where for three consecutive nights steel-wrapped packages of death plopped down from the sky, hundreds of persons asked authorities to evacuate the bleeding region.

In that section many men, women and children stood on the main thoroughfares clutching the few belongings they had been able to snatch from the ruins of their homes. They begged rides from passing motorists, hailing their senses reeling under the German blows, had no idea of what they were doing. All they wanted was to be far away from the place where they had suffered.

Taking note of the restless shifting of humanity, the ministry of transport asked the public to refrain from unnecessary traveling to and from the London area.

"Violent and indiscriminate bombing of London in the past two of three days naturally has caused some temporary dislocation of traveling facilities," the ministry admitted.

Nevertheless the trains leaving one of the main railroad stations for rural areas were jammed to capacity from the early hours of Tuesday morning. So heavy was the load that in many cases second or even third sections of the same schedule were added.

A railroad official said that a

HUMAN SKYSCRAPER—That is, from his point of vantage, he could scrape the sky if he pleased. It's a sheer drop of 418 feet between him and the ground, but Steplejack James T. Culp appears wholly unconcerned as he goes about a welding job with nothing to sit on but a narrow steel girder atop a radio tower in Chillum, Md. He doesn't have a parachute, either.

stream of "blitzkrieg evacuees" started yesterday, but the bombing last night boosted the trickle to a steady flow.

In addition to the rail exodus, many automobiles, lorries and even commercial trucks were to be seen carrying Londoners to the country from the damaged areas.

On such conveyances were such odds and ends as bedding and furniture which indicated that many of the evacuees were leaving homes blasted by bombs.

I spoke with several men bidding farewell to their wives and children. All agreed that the war on and across London's doorstep was a man's job, and that women and children at home were mere encumbrances.

Typical Londoner. Typical of the all-pervading spirit was the observation of Arthur Blake, 46-year-old World War veteran who had just said goodbye to his wife and three children. As the train pulled out he turned and said:

"That's a good job done. I have only myself to think about now—and the cat. Instead of gathering the family at night and taking them to the shelter to see their nerves gradually break under the stress of bombings, I can do as I please."

"And, believe me, the bombings have got to get a lot worse before I crack."

Not only can the Londoners take it, but they can joke about it. When a train was about to pull out I heard a young wife shout to her husband, "I suppose when I write you soon your address will be Fourth Roofless House, Bomb-Crater road, Southwest London."

George Attacks F. D. R. Method In Base Swap

Senator Is Critical Because Congress Was Not Consulted.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator George, of Georgia, in a speech in the senate today, attacked President Roosevelt for not consulting congress in his transfer of American destroyers for leases on Atlantic island bases, declaring there was no "warrant for the assumption that congress would not grant every power and take every step for the defense of this country."

He declared: "We may know in a general way of the general reasons for a particular policy, but is that any good or justifiable reason why we should not proceed to determine our policy in the way in which it ought to be determined?"

In reference to the agreement with Great Britain, Senator George said: "We have had no treaty about it, and in the acquisition of some of those bases we have assumed, and will of necessity assume, most momentous international obligations that this country in all its long history has undertaken."

He predicted that congress will be asked to appropriate $900,000,000 or a billion dollars for that purpose on top of our other military defense.

The intention of the United States to permit other western hemisphere nations share these bases, he said, means beyond all doubt one of the most complicated ed, one of the most far-reaching, one of the most important international engagements that this nation ever entered into; one fraught with more possibilities for good or evil.

Commenting on the President's action, the Georgian stated: "Is there any warrant for the assumption that the congress would not grant every power and take every step necessary for the defense of this country, by the acquisition of bases in the oceans on either side of the western hemisphere, and by invitation to other nations to participate in the use and occupancy of the bases when they are completed? We may know in a general way of the general reasons for a particular policy, but is that any good or justifiable reason why we should not proceed to determine our policy in the way in which it ought to be determined?"

Lawyers Back 6-Year Term For Presidents

Bar Association Committee Rejects Anti-Third Term Proposal.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—(AP) The resolutions committee of the American Bar Association rejected an anti-third term proposal today, agreeing instead to report one which endorsed a single six-year term for future Presidents of the nation.

However, it was announced that the entire convention of 6,000 delegates would receive both resolutions—the original one which "unqualifiedly" condemned President Roosevelt's third term aspirations and the committee version—for discussion later in the week.

The original resolution, sponsored by Edward C. Bailey, of New York, and H. Graham Morrison, of Bristol, Tenn., also endorsed a constitutional amendment which would provide for a single six-year presidential term.
